Assassin Prince Used Bullets Too

Mad Monk Plied with Poison

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian Prince Felix Youssouppoff told an American jury Wednesday how he plied the "Mad Monk" Rasputin with poison food and bullets in a basement room of the Youssouppoff Palace while a gramophone upstairs played I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy. The standing-room-only crowd in the state supreme court chamber strained forward as the almost legendary assassin, now 79, told how hard it was to kill the hulking, filthy peasant who had gained the confidence of Czarina and her weak-willed husband, Czar Nicholas II. Youssouppoff, who was the czar's nephew by marriage, admitted he did not murder Rasputin to save the Imperial Court from his evil influence but because he loathed the false monk's sexual debaucheries. He said he asked Rasputin to leave the imperial capital, St. Petersburg. Continued on Page 2

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesia's cabinet has sent an ultimatum to Britain to grant the white-ruled central African colony immediate freedom or face a unilateral declaration of independence.

'Use Force To Save Rhodesia'

EDINBURGH (AP) — The 22-year-old daughter of Garfield Todd, former Rhodesian prime minister, urged Britain Wednesday to suspend that African colony's constitution, using force if necessary.

Judy Todd flew from New York, where she is a Columbia University student, to a teaching post in Rhodesia at the University of Edinburgh after her father was placed under house arrest Monday by the Rhodesian government.

On her arrival in Britain, Miss Todd said she would express the views of her father, a champion of African rights, "as far as I know his thinking." He had planned to participate in the teach-in.

Miss Todd said she is not influenced by arguments that white settlers should be given more time to educate the African majority, establish democracy and justice.

U.S. Midwest Feels Tremor

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — An earth tremor was felt across Missouri and into Kansas about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Dr. James Peoples, seismologist at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, said it appeared to be "a pretty decent little earthquake. My guess would be that it was within 300 miles of Lawrence."

Canadians for Viet Nam?

Produce Johnson Note John D Hurls Challenge

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

RENFREW, Ont. — The hustings caught fire last night as Conservative leader John Diefenbaker challenged Prime Minister Pearson to produce at once, the "Canadian-troops-for-Viet Nam" letter sent by President Johnson.

At the same time, he charged there was "some reason behind" the confusion, disorganization and deception surrounding the contents of the letter.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew into a rage, at a rally in the Legion Hall here, after the Prime Minister and three key ministers had disagreed over the letter.

He was stunned that Defence Minister Paul Hellyer — "Little Boy Blue," he called him — had not even seen the letter from the U.S. president.

JOHNSON DEMAND
The letter and the government's handling of it are now a major election issue, following claims by Creditistes and others that the government will commit troops to Viet Nam.

Talking to an afternoon crowd of 300, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Prime Minister had said that President Johnson, in his mid-summer letter, wanted Canadian troops for Viet Nam.

"And, naturally, when the Prime Minister says things, you believe them."

ORDINARY LETTER
But External Affairs Minister Martin — "his second in command" — did not know that the Prime Minister had said that. He said the President did not ask for troops.

"When you get the Prime Minister and his senior minister unable to read an ordinary letter, there must be some reason behind it."

"They are both educated men, they both read English. Yet one came to one opinion and one came to the other."

WANTS EXCERPTS
Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that he had asked for the letter so he could find out what the Prime Minister and Mr. Martin were talking about.

"After all, who would be sent over there if troops were asked for?"

The Prime Minister, he said, had agreed to this, or at least to produce excerpts to show the situation.

"He wanted," he said, but no excerpts were produced and the blame was given President Johnson. Continued on Page 2

Cheer
Pearson

HUMBOLT, Sask. — This isolated Prairie town of 3,500 presented Prime Minister Pearson with the biggest, most boisterous rally of his campaign Wednesday.

About 3,500 people, a third of them youngsters under voting age, almost filled the Wigwam Arena. They sang, shouted and waved free miniature Maple Leaf flags, cheering and clapping.

All this in the heart of Diefenbaker country — the one province in which the Tories held every seat.

FUN ALL EVENING
It was campaigning western style — fun all evening. Well almost all evening. At times the prime minister's speech sounded as flat as the Prairies themselves.

It certainly wasn't all his fault. Premier Ross Thatcher and Senator Hammy McDonald had reviewed the whole Liberal record, and many of his plans for the future before he reached the podium.

The audience erupted with applause at almost everything their two favorite sons had to say. So the prime minister was following two pretty tough acts.

But Liberal organizers were delighted anyway. They felt the Beer, glorious beer — at last!

After almost nine parched weeks, the big bottle and draft drought is at an end and British Columbians will be able to toast the occasion with the hitherto strikebound nectar by Saturday.

Return to work for 450 workers at four mainland breweries and the Lucky Lager plant here began midnight tonight, after their vote Wednesday night to accept the compromise settlement hammered out in resumed talks between the two sides.

Prior to last week's resumption in negotiations, there had been eight weeks of silence, not to mention frustration for the province's beer drinkers and hotels.

MAJOR CONCESSION
The agreement will give workers a 42-47 cents an hour increase over three years, an extra week's vacation for senior employees.

But job protection clauses are considered the major concession to workers. The agreement covers guaranteed wages, manpower, termination pay, job training and retraining, and accident and sickness benefits.

NORMAL DELIVERIES
Victoria workers voted 523 to accept the agreement at their Union Centre meeting.

Later, Lucky Lager brewmaster W. Spersholt said he could promise normal draft and bottled beer deliveries to outlets Saturday. Several licensed premises in the Greater Victoria area receive their draft supply from the mainland, however.

LUVERLY SELF
Mr. Spersholt added estimates that 8,000 gallons had been languishing in the vats during the strike were conservative, but denied first customers would be getting a brew of special vintage quality.

The beer will just be its luvverly self.

The strike began August 23 after lengthy talks between employers and the International Union of United Brewery, Cereal, Flour, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America broke down.

Beer supplies dwindled rapidly.

RAN DRY
Within a week or two almost every beer parlor in the Vancouver and Victoria areas and many in other towns and cities had to close because there was no draft beer.

Government liquor stores also ran dry, except for beer supplied by two small breweries and limited imported brands.

Several thousand beer parlor waiters were thrown out of work by the strike, which also shut down beer distribution services.

Four Children Victims

Carload of Eight Killed in Plunge

RADIUM JUNCTION, B.C. (CP) — Eight Indians, including four tiny children, died Wednesday when their car plunged off a forestry bridge into the Columbia River in southeastern British Columbia.

The accident was spotted by a logging company employee driving along the forestry road.

The car settled in about 10 feet of water. Eight bodies were in the vehicle when it was recovered. All the doors and windows were closed.

Police identified three of the dead as Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stanley of the Columbia reserve near Windermere, B.C., and Josephine Pascal of the Klamath reserve near Invermere, all within 20 miles of the accident scene in the Rocky Mountains.

The four children killed were Maria, 5, Marlene, 4, Elizabeth, 1, and Leonard, five months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley.

RAMP have not yet released the name of the other adult killed.

Prince George Today

Bennett Hits Campaign Trail

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett flies to Prince George today to open a whirlwind, two-week election campaign for Social Credit's 22 B.C. candidates in the Nov. 8 federal election.

He left Victoria Wednesday afternoon with his executive assistant William Budd and driver Art Vickers, planning to stay overnight at the Hotel Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett was to fly this morning to Prince George where he will deliver his opening speech in the civic centre at 8 p.m., in support of incumbent Socred candidate Bert Leboe.

He is scheduled to fly back to Vancouver Friday, where a major press conference will be held in the Hotel Vancouver at 7 p.m.

HEAVY FIRE
The premier's office gave no indication Wednesday of what can be expected as the Socred campaign unfolds, but several cabinet ministers have already brought heavy fire on the province's Liberal candidates.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday that so far as Vancouver Island is concerned, an effort is being made to get a four-member bloc of Socred members in the House, who will fight for a fair deal for B.C.

Mr. Campbell spoke in Nanaimo Wednesday night in support of Socred candidate Lyle Wilkinson who is seeking the seat for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and will speak in Port Alberni on Nov. 4, on behalf of Jean Gagner, who is contesting the Comox-Alberni seat.

Vancouver Island's other two Socred candidates are Frank Hunter in Victoria and Mrs. Vera Pipes in Esquimalt-Saanich.

THREE PLANKS
The Up-Island Socreds have three basic planks in their platform, said Mr. Campbell:

● The Trans-Canada Highway should be extended from Nanaimo to Port Hardy (it now runs from Nanaimo to Victoria).

● Ferry links to Vancouver Island from the Mainland should become part of the Trans-Canada Highway system and the Prince Rupert run should be considered as an international throughway linking the U.S. with Alaska.

● Offshore drilling for petroleum should come under provincial government jurisdiction because "a good deal of it will be adjacent to the Comox-Alberni constituency."

B.C.'s Socreds had only two seats in the last Parliament, those held by incumbents Leboe in the Prince George stronghold and A. B. Patterson representing the Fraser Valley.

Malted Milk Batch Sought

Dairy Firm Warns Public

TORONTO (CP) — The Borden Co. Ltd. is attempting to recover 468 14-ounce jars of plain malted milk powder processed incorrectly, Vice-President Mills Mars said Wednesday.

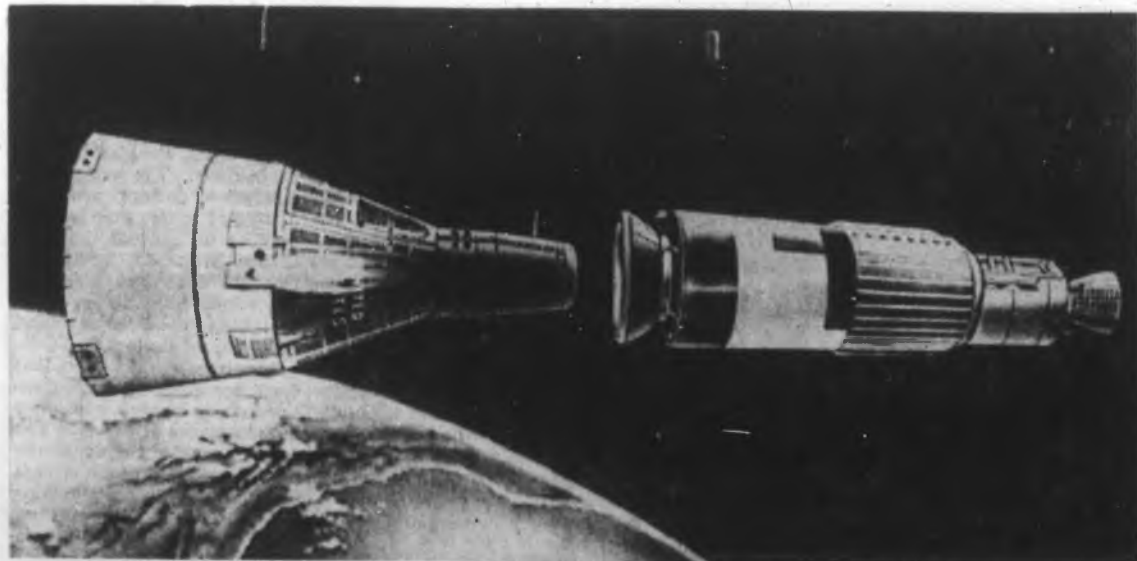

Mr. Mars said in a statement the malted milk could cause illness to anyone who consumed it.

"The regular processing procedure was interrupted at the company's Ingersoll, Ont., plant and a limited amount of the product, resulting from the irregular processing procedure, was packaged," Mr. Mars said.

The company traced the suspected product to Vancouver, Edmonton, Kitchener, Windsor and Rexdale, Ont., and Montreal.

Although many jars already have been recovered, company officials are concerned about jars that may be in homes and have asked householders to look on the side of the label for the perforated code numbers 15147 and 15148. Jars with those numbers should be returned to the store.

"No other batch numbers or flavors are involved," Mr. Mars said.

and two together and get the answer four as to what the decision will be."

There was no sign whether the cabinet had come to any firm conclusion about when and how independence would take effect.

MET GONDO

Before the meeting Smith had a 25-minute talk with Josiah Gondo, leader of the all-Negro parliamentary opposition United Peoples party.

Gondo told reporters he had asked the prime minister to recall Parliament and Smith agreed to put this before the cabinet.

GUARANTEES

The letter insisted a constitution drawn up for Rhodesia at a 1961 conference covered the principles the British government is demanding before granting independence. Chief of these is a guarantee of eventual Negro-majority rule for a country of about 220,000 whites and 4,000,000 Negroes.

Smith's letter said, "Rhodesia is being condemned not for what we have done but for what others say we might do in the future."

'NOT AT ONCE'

Gondo emerged smiling from his meeting, the first between the two since Smith returned a week ago from unsuccessful London negotiations on the crisis.

Asked whether he had received the impression that action on independence was imminent, Gondo replied: "Not at once."

MUST SAVE COUNTRY

Later the Negro leader issued a statement calling on opponents of a unilateral declaration of independence to "show their strength and save the country from disaster."

"It is now time for the people of Rhodesia to show that they are against a unilateral declaration of independence and to make a stand against hasty and illegal action."

His party's caucus would

U.K. Will Continue To Oppose China

TOKYO (Reuters) — British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart Wednesday warned

China, North Viet Nam and Indonesia that if they preferred violence to peaceful settlements they would continue to be resisted.

Although Britain favors Peking's representation at the United Nations, Stewart said: "We must make it clear to China that if she commits aggression, as she did in recent years against India, she will be resisted."

"If she helps to encourage others to aggression, as in Viet Nam, that aggression will also be resisted," he said.

meet Friday to consider the situation, he added.

George Rudland, minister for trade, industry, transport and power, will fly to Johannesburg today for talks with South African Transport Minister B. Schoeman, a Rhodesian government spokesman said.

The spokesman said the visit is "routine" and Rudland was expected to return to Salisbury tonight.

Informed sources said Rudland hopes to obtain from the white-minority South African government a firm pledge of economic support in the event of a unilateral declaration of independence.

The South African government never has given any official open promise of support for Rhodesia if it took illegal action.

Hidden in Peking Cargo

Marine Raids Net Arms

JAKARTA (AP) — Marine raids on cargoes of construction material shipped to Indonesia from China have netted large amounts of weapons, the armed forces newspaper Angkatan Bersendjata reports.

The Peking regime has been helping Indonesia construct quarters in Jakarta for a Conference of the New Emerging Forces—Confere for short—and has freighted in various building supplies.

HIDDEN MATERIALS

Reporting on developments in the third week since the army crushed a Communist-backed uprising, Angkatan Bersendjata says marine corps units raided Jakarta's Tanjung Priok Harbor area to locate "arms that were partly smuggled in the country, hidden in construction material and crates for Confere."

Trains Delayed By Derailment

REGINA (CP)—Derailment of 25 cars of a CPR freight train near Wolsley, Sask. has kept the main line blocked all day and caused delays in the schedules of most east or west-bound passenger or freight trains. Meanwhile mainline traffic was re-routed through the Souris line which runs through Arcola to Brandon.

Today's Students 'Privileged Class' Complaints Unreal

TORONTO (CP) — Today's students are almost a "privileged class" whose campus rebellions represent one of the "great and important paradoxes of today's university," Dr. John B. Macdonald, president of the University of British Columbia said Wednesday.

They have a right to be concerned about teaching methods and accessibility to higher education but their other complaints are often unreal, Dr. Macdonald said in the second lecture in a series.

Students have great deal of freedom, have a choice of courses and "do have an opportunity of meeting and knowing eminent scholars, even though they complain they don't," he said.

Although most students are responsible, a small group on every campus is willing to disobey the law to get their views heard, he said.

He mentioned the free-speech controversy at the University of California at Berkeley last fall in which students used civil disobedience in a conflict with their administration.

"Somewhere we are failing to get the message across that universities exist for the individual," he said. "They are a bulwark against anarchy, the kind of anarchy some of them (the students) are provoking."

Dr. Macdonald said at the University of British Columbia responsible dissension is tolerated and even encouraged. He gave the example of a criticism of teaching methods of faculty members published by UBC science students.

It was a carefully-developed study with opinions obtained from a large number of students and with fully-documented criticisms.

Pacific Potential

ESTABLISHMENT of a Pacific trade and cultural centre in Vancouver is part of the far-sighted policy and planning of the Progressive Conservatives of British Columbia, backed by the national party, and with an undertaking that a Conservative government will promote and financially foster the ideas it embraces.

It is a sound policy, too, aimed at the expansion of trade and closer relations with all countries bordering on the Pacific.

It is an idea older than Confederation. Early traders on this coast looked to Asia rather than American and European markets.

Sir Richard McBride, then premier of B.C., was enthusiastic about the trade potential with China and Japan in the pre-First World War years, and Canadian Pacific steamships, with the magnificent Empress liners, nourished and expanded a rich commerce with the Orient.

But somehow or other the dream faded with the departure of the great trans-Pacific fleets and the discontinuance of regular sea service between west coast ports and the Antipodes. B.C., along with the rest of Canada, concentrated on the development of other markets.

Latterly, with huge wheat sales to China and Russia, with closer commercial associations with Japan, the Canadian west has become aware once more of the importance of Asia.

"The Canadian people," says the Conservative party's statement of policy, "are uniquely equipped to play an effective role in the Pacific which will contribute both to our own growth and prosperity and to better human understanding."

Understandably, the idea originated in B.C. Understandably, too, it had no immediate impact in the east of Canada, nor upon the Liberal party, so engrossed with political aspirations in Quebec.

But the Conservatives have taken the project to their hearts. The trade and cultural centre, as they see it, will provide a focal point for continuous promotion of commerce, and space for displays, fairs, exhibitions, forums and seminars.

Conservative policy goes farther. It will extend the Nowlan scheme to provide in B.C. for automobile assembly plants and similar industries to serve the western market; conduct a marketing program for western Canadian products throughout the Pacific area; renew consideration of academic and scholarship programs to give special training for students from Pacific nations; support the Institute of Pacific Studies at UBC to sustain its position as a centre of learning in Pacific affairs, and thus extend its knowledge for the benefit of industries interested in the whole region.

The Conservative plan envisages the re-establishment of shipbuilding subsidies, and it is not too far-fetched to envisage a time when Canadian ships will once again carry Canadian goods to foreign markets and bring our neighbors' exports home.

Conservatives recognize that Canada is not only a Pacific nation but is potentially a Pacific power.

This is significant and constructive thinking, and above all encouraging to British Columbians alert to the opportunities of their future.

Dodging the Facts

THE flag issue was settled by the last Parliament but it was interesting to have Mr. David Gross bring it up again during a campaign speech this week. No doubt he felt compelled to; he had some explaining to do to the constituent voters whose views on the subject he ignored.

When in Ottawa, he said, he found he was more of a Canadian than a Victorian. Does this mean then that he considers the electors here are not Canadian? If so it is strange he should seek to represent them in the Canadian Parliament. He was once an RCN officer, also, in a navy that is Canadian and not Victorian. Local voters can be excused if they conclude he does not know what he is.

The plain fact is that on this issue he pledged himself to be guided by the flag sentiment of his constituents, which were predominantly in favor of the ensign that was discarded, and then let them down by acting otherwise.

On another major issue of recent note he waffled equally when he said that "we (the Liberals) accepted nuclear armaments to fulfill a commitment made by the Conservatives." Here again he blunts the facts.

There was dispute at the time as to whether such a commitment actually had been made, but if it had it is peculiar that on assuming office Prime Minister Pearson should have found it necessary to arrange an agreement with Washington to put nuclear arms on Canadian soil. Why not just have said, "Yes, carry on and send them up?"

Mr. Gross leaves out half the story, however. Mr. Pearson promised the nation that having to accept nuclear arms because the Conservative regime of Mr. Diefenbaker had committed itself, as he claimed, he would immediately thereafter re-negotiate the matter to have them removed.

This part of his election bargain his Liberal government proceeded to forget. The nuclear arms are still here.

Like Mr. Gross and his flag views, Mr. Pearson apparently also changed his mind; conveniently and with scant respect for his given pledge.

These two matters alone should be enough to indicate to voters in the Victoria riding that they can't depend in the slightest on the Liberal promises being made to them during the present election campaign.

Pretty Small

THE GREATER Victoria school board finds itself stalled in part of its construction program because the education department will not share the entire cost of two schools. On these low bids even after scaling down were $184,895 and $189,664; the province is willing to share in paying only $171,000 for each of them, and the board hasn't the money to make up the difference.

Board officials suggest the department is taking an unrealistic attitude, allowing $14 a square foot when $16 is more like the going figure these days. And if this is the case, it is probably a short-sighted view also.

Delay means, and has meant all through recent years, extra expense as wages and supply costs climb. And a further reduction in standards would soon mean increased maintenance and repair bills, the board was told.

Multiply this latter expenditure by the years a school is expected to last—North Ward is 71—and a half share of about $30,000 looks pretty small.

"Your move, Mr. Wilson."

Peking Defines 'Peace' Game Rules

Do as We Say or We Won't Play

By ROBERT ELEGANT from Hong Kong

COMMUNIST CHINA has jettisoned all her ideological baggage and set a foreign policy course guided only by fixed stars—Chinese nationalism and hostility to the United States. Peking's goal is conquest, and the Communists will be deterred from their fixed course neither by concern for world opinion nor by the tenets of the Marxist-Leninist faith they profess. Despite the caution in action which complements Peking's recklessness in speech, China's conversion to unabashed strategy of power politics poses a definite new danger to world peace.

The most immediate illustration of China's new policy is a simple list of the three nations with which she is most intimately associated at the present time. The Communists are bound by ties of common interest—and by no real ideological sympathies—to:

—Chaotic Indonesia, which is ruled by a strongman who balances the army against the powerful PKI, the Indonesian Communist party.

—Cambodia, a kingdom dominated by the erratic personality of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

—Democratic Pakistan, which is ruled by a bourgeois general. It is hard to discern in these allies of expediency the champions of the oppressed or the builders of the glorious new Marxist future. They, in their turn, are bound to China by apparent self-interest and by antagonism to other nations which enjoy, particularly, American support.

This new alignment is the direct result of the slipping away of previous Chinese allies because of the over-increasing imperiousness and belligerence of China's public pronouncements. Although Peking has, by her vehemence, frightened off the allies she seeks within both the Communist camp and the underdeveloped world, the propaganda mills continue to spew out an unceasing stream of threats.

It is time for review of the relationship of the Security Council and the International Court of Justice. The Security Council, now 15 members, should consult the international court whenever it considers there is a threat to the peace.

The question of the legality of NATO, SEATO, Warsaw Pact, under the charter of the UN, has never been requested from the International Court of Justice. Why? Also the legal representation of China in the Security Council and the general assembly. Why?

International courts taking the UN oath of office: "I take orders from no government... I will regulate my conduct with the interests of the United Nations only in view." Will be one forward step on the road to world law and world brotherhood.

king's drum-beating over his audience with the usually withdrawn Mao is intended to put the fear of China into the hearts of the Thais. Such threats seem somewhat self-defeating when one considers that it is precisely because of their fear of China that the Thais have invited the United States to use bases in their country. It is, therefore, hard to know quite how to assess such a threat or Premier Chou En-lai's renewed pledge to "fight shoulder to shoulder with the Vietnamese people" if they need China's help.

It would obviously drive the entire world into an acute anxiety if every Chinese threat were taken at face value. But it would be foolhardy to assume that just because the Chinese talk, they will never act. They have already demonstrated—particularly in Korea and on the Indian border—that they are quite prepared to act when they feel that the need for action transcends the risks of action.

The Chinese have apparently been driven into their present frenzy by the realization that they are relatively impotent to advance the cause of world-wide revolution. To drive the United States from South Vietnam—or even to prevent the U.S. Air Force raids on North Vietnam.

In the long run, an enforced realization that they are neither omnipotent nor omiscient bodes well for Chinese adjustment to a world they wish they could remake. In the meantime, the threats and bitter words sound like a child in a tantrum shouting, "If you won't do it my way, I won't play at all!"

Unfortunately, these particular children command three million armed men. It therefore becomes necessary to analyze their words with care. The official New China News Agency recently issued a 7,500 word text which is the clearest and most concrete statement of present Chinese foreign policy. It is the corrected transcript of the four-hour press conference Foreign Minister Chen Yi gave in Peking a little over two weeks ago. Because the Communists took so long to mull over the version they finally released, analysts in Hong Kong feel that the document must be taken as a solemn statement of Red China's views and intentions. Chen Yi made these major points:

—Communist China is not interested in joining the United Nations until that body reverses itself by abrogating its condemnation of China as the aggressor in Korea and passing a resolution citing the United States as the true aggressor.

—Unless the United Nations returns itself and expels those countries of which Communist China disapproves, Peking will sponsor a "new, revolutionary United Nations."

—China does not approve the convening of the projected Afro-Asian Conference in Algiers in November unless her conditions are met. Chief among them are: (1) No invitation to the Soviet Union to participate, and (2) The primary purpose of the meeting must be to form a world-wide "anti-imperialist, anti-American front."

—The underdeveloped nations should all renounce their debts to the United States and refuse to accept further American aid. Taking American aid is "trying to quench one's thirst by drinking poison." China is prepared to cancel all debts owed her by nations which cancel their debts to the United States.

—China will share her atomic knowledge for peaceful purposes, but not for weapons. Nonetheless, she believes it desirable that as many countries as possible possess atomic weapons.

—Although he fears that he "may not have the luck to see the U.S. imperialist invasion of China," Chen Yi hopes that it will occur as soon as possible. In insisting that invasion, he declares, the Chinese people will destroy the United States.

That statement and one singular omission demonstrate the degree of China's present frustration.

Chen Yi obviously realizes that Chinese arms could prevail over American power only if the United States were foolish enough to invade the Chinese mainland. Aside from the satisfaction of challenging the United States, he gains little from that statement and frightens both his potential allies and the Chinese people.

Moreover, he makes no coherent presentation of the strategy of "people's war" which Peking has been counting upon to overwhelm capitalism everywhere. That policy is in disarray.

The ship of Chinese foreign policy is thus now wallowing amid mountainous waves. The captain's response to the emergency is to swear at the winds, threatening to rule all sail and defy the storm to destroy him.

So here's a toast to Professors Monod, Jacob and Lwoff. May they be an example to others and inspire the loners to communicate.

Having seen the brochure describing Centennial Square and understanding a reprint of this colorful document is to be prepared, may I voice a timely word of criticism?

As Centennial Square is, in its basic form, the "brain child" of late city planner Mr. Roderick Clark and the fountain, except the mosaic work, wholly his own design, should not "credit be given where credit is due?"

The apparent small-minded vindictiveness that permeated the whole "Clark affair" should not be carried coast to coast by the distribution of the Centennial Square brochure.

Role of a World Court

THE International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations," states Article 32 of the Charter. Its jurisdiction rests upon the consent of states to submit their disputes to it. The efforts made at San Francisco to render its jurisdiction compulsory in disputes of a legal nature failed. The court dispenses justice free of all charge to all parties bringing a case before it.

It is time for review of the relationship of the Security Council and the International Court of Justice. The Security Council, now 15 members, should consult the international court whenever it considers there is a threat to the peace.

The question of the legality of NATO, SEATO, Warsaw Pact, under the charter of the UN, has never been requested from the International Court of Justice. Why? Also the legal representation of China in the Security Council and the general assembly. Why?

International courts taking the UN oath of office: "I take orders from no government... I will regulate my conduct with the interests of the United Nations only in view." Will be one forward step on the road to world law and world brotherhood.

Long live the United Nations! WILLIAM MITCHELL, 628 Beach View Dr.

Tico Good Words

Regarding a letter in a Vancouver contemporary the writer says: Can anyone explain the reluctance of Lester B. Pearson to concede that peoples of British stock form a vitally important part of the population of Canada? For example, he says he recalls his (Mr. Pearson's) near, if not actual, apology for using the word "English" when referring to the languages, and in a recent TV program his obvious hesitation to use the word "British" when referring to this province in connection with President Johnson's visit.

Well, as far as I am concerned I shall always use the two words for without the British stock there would never have been a Canada.

Listen closely to "hot lines" and some reporters on radio and TV then draw your own conclusions as I have.

Beneficial Union

The three French scientists who have won the Nobel medicine prize, studied in metabolism, cell genetics and micro-biology, and were able as the "Three Musketeers" to bring their knowledge together in a most splendid manner.

This is a good example of teamwork and shows a high degree of a communication ability for a specific purpose amongst professionals. Often as not, self-interest inhibits research and as a result many people are in a little pocket of their own and out of touch with potential "Musketeers" who to get their might advance scientific study greatly.

So here's a toast to Professors Monod, Jacob and Lwoff. May they be an example to others and inspire the loners to communicate.

Health Service Threatened

Doctors May Strike

By DR. ABRAHAM MARCUS from London

MANY OBSERVERS—some pessimists, some optimists—are forecasting the early collapse of Britain's National Health Service.

It is just over 17 years since the battle with the doctors was fought and won, and Britain banished matters of life and death from relationship with the length of a man's purse. But the enemies of the service who have continued hopefully to champion the cause of private medical practice rejoice because, for the first time since 1948, there is just a possibility that the fee-paying system may return in a big way.

For the past six months or more revolt has simmered among general practitioners. They claim they are overworked and underpaid and that the patient wastes much of their time with trivial complaints. They have threatened a mass resignation from the health service if their demands are not met. The demands are for more money, less work and restrictions on patients.

Over 18,000 doctors out of 23,000 in the family doctor service have sent in letters of resignation to the British Medical Association, the leading doctors' organization, which is holding them in readiness for a decision to walk out. All that has to be done is to stamp on a date and send them off to the ministry of health.

Negotiations that have been going on do not seem to matter; even if the ministry gives in on all fronts, which is unlikely, resignation of at least a small minority seems possible.

The protagonists of private practice have grasped the opportunity. Encouraged by the example of a few doctors in the Midlands who have already taken the plunge into the private sector, the BMA has set up an independent organization to sponsor the retreat from the health service.

The experience in the Midlands has given the ordinary British patient the taste of private practice for the first time in 17 years. Each patient pays the doctor 2s. 6d. (35 cents) a week plus 2s. (28 cents) for a consultation in the doctor's office and 4s. (55 cents) for a visit at home.

The few doctors who have set up so far say the scheme is successful. But one doesn't know so far what the patient thinks of it.

It has been calculated that if as few as 1,000 doctors go over to the private system, the health service could be gravely embarrassed, for the additional new doctors to cope with the load shed by those who have left the service could not be found.

If this is the predicament that faces the ministry of health this coming winter is the public that will suffer. The doctors will have shown that the ministry cannot run an efficient family doctor service as it is required to by act of Parliament. At the price of much inconvenience and suffering they will have shown that we cannot do without them. As in all forms of industrial warfare, it is the consumer who bears the brunt of the battle.

In Day of Crisis

India Seeks Bomb

By CYRIL DUNN from New Delhi

WHAT'S TO STOP India from using an underground nuclear explosion to make one of the many peaceful holes needed, for instance, at a hydro-electric dam site?

Other ideas as innocently devious as this one are now being put up to support a renewed public demand that India should make an atom bomb of her own.

Starting when China made her first nuclear test, the Indian campaign has been immensely invigorated by the late fighting against Pakistan, and by the threat of ultimatum the Chinese threw in from the Himalayan sidelines.

The mild voices of last summer are silent now. Only Mr. Krishna Menon, in all else a fire-breathing patriot, still stands in curious isolation to speak out against an Indian bomb, leading some Indians to insist that he was always a pacifist.

But even among the bomb's most ardent advocates, there are some who want India to go ahead without actually saying so.

It appears that this has not much to do with local concern about India's moral image. The notion that India must always conduct her foreign affairs on a high moral plane has been a casualty of the Punjab battle, and news of its death has been received by many Indians with a joyful sense of liberation.

Even so, "Build the Bomb" Indians seem sensibly aware of a need for caution and disguise. They say that if the Indian government were to come out openly in favor of the bomb, the powers who have already shown a lack of sympathy for India's cause might cut off essential supplies.

It is partly to frustrate "political blackmail" of this sort, though not, of course, in this context—that Mr. Shastri, the prime minister, has this week exhorted his countrymen to undertake a massive drive towards self-reliance in food and in armaments.

Sponsors of the campaign are calling it "the biggest mass effort since independence." They speak of a "National Movement for Self-Reliance," comparable with the "Freedom Struggle." No doubt carried away by the enthusiasm of the hour, one member of the planning commission has hailed the coming of "a great leap forward."

Mr. Shastri is banking heavily on what Mrs. Indira Gandhi has called "the great upsurge." This is the widespread birth of national pride and confidence based on universal belief in victory over Pakistan and often remarkably endorsed. Little Indian boys are writing letters in their blood to Mr. Shastri, offering to serve him and the nation, and even the convicts in the central jail at Ambala have contributed to the National Defence Fund.

Indians are being invited to feel ashamed that a country, 80 per cent of whose people live on the land, is obliged to rely on foreign charity for an adequate food supply. And they are being warned that the proud and justified policies of their government might be balked by threatened cuts in foreign aid or by limitations imposed on its use.

Even so, Mr. Shastri has taken on a staggering task, full of danger to his regime. For 16 years the farm policy of his Congress Party has been in the opinion of the best Indian judges "a tragic failure." The reasons for this are manifold and its seems wild to imagine that "the great upsurge" has swept them away.

This vast change in the established behavior of millions of people is to be brought about without promise of material reward. On the contrary, Mr. Shastri has asked his people to put up with shortages in a spirit of sacrifice. Some of the state chief ministers have already promised to raise more and higher taxes to help finance self-reliance. And with defence needs set first there are bound to be fewer consumer goods, though Mr. Asoka Mehta, India's chief planner, has said cuts will be so far as is possible confined to "the non-basic demands of the better-off."

India might yet astonish us all. If it depends on leadership, then in the past month Mr. Shastri has set himself as a leader alongside Pandit Nehru, if not slightly higher. Most Indians are still glowing with what Mr. Mehta calls "the incandescence of common purpose." Slogans like "Two days' meals in three; three days' work in two," though sizably irrelevant, are catching on. It remains to be seen whether or not this present zeal will survive as the excitement of war recedes. In the more temperate days ahead, will the opposition parties who sponsored last year's food riots go on lending themselves to a national movement which could mean their extinction in the 1967 election?

In any event, the campaign must also impose great strain on India's weak economy, and for this patriotism may not be enough. Some foreign economists are already agitated at the risk of economic calamity. From here it does not look like the ideal moment for India to subject herself to still further stress by setting out to make an atom bomb.

Rhodesia: The Facts

Africans Affluent —At a Price

By DAVID HOLDEN, from Salisbury, Rhodesia

The centre of Salisbury is clean, prosperous, decorous and white, with a Manhattan skyline and a suburban soul.

The centre of Highfield, seven miles away, is sprawling and black, with no structure higher than a squat two floors and a beer garden full of noise and liquor.

Between them is the road that joins Rhodesia's two nations. It is Rhodesia's misfortune that only the Africans have to travel it.

In the mornings they come in their thousands by bus and bicycle to serve Salisbury's European economy. In the evenings they return to sleep—perchance to dream.

If their dreams are disturbed we should not be surprised. For in a lifetime, their old life has been utterly destroyed, but the new life has not yet admitted them to its full rewards. They are third class citizens in their own homeland.

Not that they have been denied all the fruits of that "western civilization" whose standards Prime Minister Ian Smith and his supporters are so determined to maintain. On the contrary, there is much material truth in Smith's claim that the Africans of Rhodesia are better off than their brethren in any of the independent states of Africa to the north.

At $336 a year, the average income of an African worker here is a good deal better than most of those elsewhere except in the Republic of South Africa. Government publications are fond of asserting that more than 1,000 African farmers in Rhodesia own tractors—an impressive figure in African terms. Irrigation schemes have certainly benefited African farmers as well as their European neighbors.

Facts Irrelevant

Houses in the African townships like Highfield may look small and shabby, but with three or four rooms for a family of four and a rent of only about $8.40 a month they are better by far than the slums and shanty towns of Lagos, or the huts that many of Highfield's families have left behind.

The African hospitals at Harare, outside Salisbury, and at Bulawayo are large, clean, efficient and well equipped—as good as any and better than most that you will see throughout the continent.

And—as the government so persistently reminds us—one out of every six or seven Africans in Rhodesia is at school compared to one in eight in Ghana, one in 18 in Tanzania, and a pitiful one in 108 in poor, benighted, uncivilized Ethiopia.

All this is incontrovertible. It is also largely irrelevant for, as Lord Hailey—the doyen of British scholar administrators in Africa—once observed, self-government is preferable to good government.

Where it is relevant, the Africans read into it a meaning quite different from that of the Europeans. "Look," one African teacher asked me, "if we're much better off than everybody else why are we the last to get majority rule? You can't have it both ways."

Smith's Rhodesian Front government says that it can because the black African states (apparently without exception) have proved the incompetence of African rule and cannot be accepted as criteria for Rhodesian actions. In the last 10 days, however, I have not met an African who accepted the premises of that argument.

If the politically minded African here compares his lot unfavorably with that of his counterparts elsewhere, many more who are perhaps less politically awakened also contrast their material and social situation unhappily with that of the Europeans next to them.

That daily journey from Highfield to Salisbury is not made in vain. It tends to inculcate a relative sense of deprivation however quickly absolute African standards are improved. It confirms many of them in the belief that what they get, however plentiful, are the crumbs from the European table.

Gap is Widening

Official statistics tell part of that story. While average African earnings are $336 a year, average European earnings are $3,500 a year. Although both are rising, the gap between the two is widening steadily.

African medical services may be good by African standards but not by those of the local Europeans, who have proportionately more than four times as many hospital beds available to them as the Africans.

It is true that over 80 per cent of African children have some schooling, but it is also true that only a fraction of them reach the last year of the primary school.

At the upper levels, where a country trains its future administrators and statesmen, Rhodesia does not do better but worse than most independent African states. It is partly because of this drastic inadequacy that only two to three thousand Africans out of a total of more than 1,000,000 potential African voters have registered on the present "A" roll of electors. And only about 80,000 are qualified to vote on the "B" or lower roll.

There are only three African lawyers practicing in the country, about a dozen African doctors and not a single African civil servant in a key position.

In short, at these levels Rhodesia is only a little better off than the Congo in 1960. This may lend support to the European view that the Africans are not yet ready for majority rule, but can hardly encourage the belief that everything possible has been done to help them.

Crude statistics are only the visible part of the iceberg of African inequality. Beneath the surface are others, damaging discriminations. Europeans, for example, can normally obtain government guarantees on urban home mortgages; Africans cannot, and with their minuscule purchasing power they remain mostly an unpropertied proletariat in the townships.

Disturbing Charge

Europeans get a small old age pension; Africans do not. Under the Land Apportionment Act, which is "the fundamental land act of Rhodesia," the geographical segregation of the races, intended originally to protect the tribal lands and customs of the Africans, is now used just as much for social discrimination in favor of the Europeans.

Indeed, the most disturbing charge made against the Rhodesian Front by European critics, as well as Africans, is that it is now using the Land Apportionment Act to enforce greater African segregation.

Among several examples of the new tendency have been:

- Government pressure on private multi-racial schools to discourage African enrollment.
- The eviction of Africans from office buildings in the European area of Salisbury which they had previously occupied by consent.

Fishermen To Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fraser River gillnet fishermen will hold a mass meeting to protest fishing closures on the Fraser River. Fraser River district council secretary Erik Arikko said Fraser gillnetters are in a desperate financial position, "having been denied any opportunity to fish Coho and Chum runs."

Such shifts seem to many observers here like straws in the wind, indicating a deliberate attempt to reverse Rhodesia's avowed policy of multi-racialism in favor of something closer to the South African system.

Apartheid in the full South African sense is still far away, and even some of the government's critics doubt whether it would or could hope to put the clock back that far.

But there is no doubt that the government's policies in the last two years have driven Rhodesia's two nations farther apart than they have ever been and the sniff of mutual fear is in the air.

The question now is how much longer the Africans will be content to go home at the end of the day to do third-class citizenship and still do no more than sleep and dream.

U.K. Tories Vote to Defend Europe—Only

Asia, Africa Thrown to Wolves

By EDWIN ROTH

From London

(Special to the Colonist)

It was not the sensational, passionate Rhodesia debate that was the most significant event of the British Conservative party's first conference since 1950, but the speech of Tory "shadow" defence minister, Enoch Powell.

Speaking officially for the party leadership, he declared for the first time the Conservative party's entirely new policy that Britain should defend only Western Europe — not Asia and Africa.

His significant (and perhaps historic) words were:

"The United Kingdom is a European power. Therefore, an alliance which can successfully defend Western Europe against attacks from the East is central to our defence policy."

"Forces and material which are needed for the purpose of that alliance have an overriding claim on the resources we can devote to our defence."

"Nations — competitors of ours — which depend equally or more on trade, have outstripped our own performance with out any military presence in the areas from which their raw materials are derived, or in which they are situated. Indeed, a those where their principal military presence has more than once proved an obstacle rather than a safeguard to trade."

"Assuming that western military power could limit, or be a factor in limiting, the extension of Russian and Chinese influence in Asia and Africa, we should still have to measure the practical effect of British military efforts against the size of the resources it demands, and the consequences of diverting them from other pressing uses — defensive or economic."

This has already become known as "The Powell Doctrine". Leading British Tories have confirmed to me that this is now the official view of the party leadership, and was very carefully considered by the party's hierarchy before Enoch Powell announced it to the world.

Because of this new Tory doctrine, the foreign and defence policies of Harold Wilson's Labor government are now much closer to Washington than those of the Conservative party.

America's present Southeast Asia policy assumed close and active co-operation by Britain, which a Conservative government would end if it put the "Powell Doctrine" into effect.

About this, Prime Minister Harold Wilson commented:

"What is interesting is Enoch Powell's apparent desire that Britain's defence efforts and, correspondingly, Britain's influence should now retreat into 'Fortress Europe'."

"To opt out of the role that Britain can play to counter the Chinese threat in Asia, and no less in Africa, would be to opt out of any influence Britain can have in the Commonwealth and in the world that is now taking shape."

Old Precepts Shattered

Reds in the Soup

By ERNEST CONINE

Representatives of communist parties in six capitalist nations, including the United States, met in Prague recently to compare notes about their problems and prospects.

A report on the round-table discussion appeared in the World Marxist Review, Soviet-dominated house organ of international communism.

The document gives a fascinating insight into the trauma which western communists are suffering as they seek to adjust to a world that Marx and Lenin never foresaw.

Their problem is that capitalism refuses to lie down and die, and the downtrodden workers can't tear themselves away from their TV sets and sports cars long enough to take the comrades seriously.

As Canadian communist W. Kashtan plaintively asked, "How does a revolutionary party work in a non-revolutionary situation when the masses don't yet realize the need for revolutionary changes?"

How the Reds respond to the dilemma will have a major impact on politics of Western Europe, and on the direction of the left-wing movement in North America.

The most striking thing about the Prague conference was a new realism, in stark contrast to the other-worldly quality of communist dialogues of the past.

The old clichés about imperialism recur

in the form of assaults on the U.S. role in Viet Nam.

But gone was any talk about seizing power by force—not because the Reds have decided it's immoral, but because they consider it impractical in advanced nations of the West.

No longer are heard fairy tales about starving workers and the impending collapse of capitalism. In fact, conference participants frankly admitted that living standards are dramatically up in the West, and that their old enemies—the democratic trade unions—deserve much of the credit.

Some of the old arrogance was missing, too.

Lenin must have turned on his alab in the mausoleum at the round-table's call for Communists to "avoid the appearance of having all the answers . . . we can and do make mistakes, too."

All this does not mean, of course, that the Communists have changed their spots.

It does reflect, however, their realization that western governments cannot be overthrown from within, and that Soviet military help in such an enterprise will not be forthcoming in the nuclear age.

Until and unless these facts of life change, the comrades have no choice but to rely on evolution instead of revolution, and to work within the framework of parliamentary democracy.

Why is watching a Philips automatic TV like riding in a chauffeur-driven car?

(Because you just sit back, relax and enjoy it.)

Philips planned it that way. In fact, that's really the whole idea behind this new Canadian designed and built Automatic TV.

Here's how it works: Instant picture & sound: The Philips Automatic comes on in two seconds—with famous Philips sound and picture clarity. (You get an exclusive 2-year guarantee on the direct-vision picture tube—automatically). Automatic contrast and brightness: Twin electric eyes measure changing light conditions in your living room. One adjusts the contrast. The other adjusts picture brightness to give you the ultimate in viewing, automatically.

Pre-set fine tuning

Changing channels is no problem with Philips. Pre-set fine tuning "remembers" the proper setting for each channel, automatically. Just set it and forget it.

As for limousine "looks," you have your choice of over 33 custom-designed wood cabinets and hand-rubbed finishes. Crafted by the artisans of Strathroy.

Have your family "chauffeur" take you to your Philips dealer—for a demonstration (automatically).

Trust in Philips is world-wide.

Students Block Pearson's Car

SASKATOON (CP) — Student demonstrators blocked passage of Prime Minister Pearson's car for a few minutes Wednesday as it left the Saskatoon airport.

The students were protesting the federal government's nuclear and Viet Nam policies.

Twenty-five University of Saskatchewan students lined up single file outside the airport gate after Mr. Pearson arrived by charter plane on a campaign trip.

READ LETTER
There was no violence but a little bit of pushing. A Saskatoon city policeman pushed back a few of the students. The line finally gave way and the prime minister's car proceeded. It was part of a cavalcade that carried the Liberal leader's party to a Saskatoon hotel.

Dale McBain, 21, of Saskatoon, an education student, was spokesman for the demonstrators. He read part of an open letter to Mr. Pearson when the car was stalled.

OPEN WINDOW
Mr. Pearson listened through an open window while McBain stood a couple of feet away. Others gathered to greet the prime minister tried to upset the demonstrators by cheering and clapping Mr. Pearson.

McBain identified the demonstrators as the Saskatoon branch of the Student Union for Peace Action, the successor to the Combined Universities Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament formed in 1959.

REMOVAL SOUGHT
The demonstrators' letter called on Mr. Pearson to remove nuclear weapons from Canadian soil and recommended that Canada have nothing to do with a proposed Multilateral Nuclear Force because it would result in further proliferation of nuclear weapons.

The letter also protested what it termed Canada's inaction in the war in Viet Nam.

Some of the protesting students linked arms to close off the gate. A few minutes before the incident McBain handed a copy of the letter to Mr. Pearson as the prime minister greeted well-wishers outside the airport building.

NOT ALL CRITICAL
McBain said he wanted to read the letter then but the prime minister gave him no opportunity.

The letter was not all critical. It commended Mr. Pearson for his stand on Rhodesia's attempt to declare unilateral independence.

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Favreau, president of the Privy Council, Wednesday called Conservative Leader Diefenbaker a "scandal monger" and a "true separatist, by trying to separate Quebec from the rest of Canada through his campaign of vilification and unfounded accusation."

Addressing a Montreal Liberal rally, Mr. Favreau charged Mr. Diefenbaker with "dragging the campaign in the mud" and with aiming "indiscriminate invective" at Quebec.

He said he would prefer to emphasize the Liberal program in his speech but "I could not help but attempt to point out Mr. Diefenbaker's destructive attitude toward a major part of this country."

All representations to the Commission must be made publicly either at this hearing or by written brief, or by letter addressed to the Secretary. Groups or individuals intending to submit briefs are requested to communicate with the Secretary beforehand. The Commission would be assisted greatly in its work if briefs submitted would include remarks and suggestions on the following points:—

1. Should Municipal boundaries be disregarded, to allow of a more even population distribution when adjusting Electoral district boundaries in a Metropolitan area?
2. Are dual member ridings preferable to two separate one member ridings covering the same area?
3. Are there regional or historical reasons why the Metropolitan area of Victoria should have a greater representation by population than the Metropolitan area of Vancouver?

All briefs not submitted at a public hearing should be in the hands of the Secretary by November 26th, 1965.

Love Letters From Nelson Up for Sale

Spaak

Strasberg

LONDON—Love letters sent by Britain's 19th-century naval hero, Admiral Horatio Nelson, to his beautiful mistress, Lady Hamilton, will be auctioned here Nov. 2. The auctioneers said the letters also include four sent to Lady Hamilton's husband, the British ambassador in Naples at the time of the historic love affair.

HOLLYWOOD—Friends say actress Susan Strasberg and actor Chris Jones, star of television's Jesse James series, were wed last month in Las Vegas, Nev. Miss Strasberg is the daughter of Actors Studio director Lee Strasberg of New York.

VERONA, Italy—The Verona state attorney ordered the seizure of the French movie Love and Pleasure Tuesday night on grounds the picture is immoral. The picture was directed by Roger Vadim and stars French actress Anna Karina, Belgian-born Catherine Spaak, and American Jane Fonda, Vadim's wife.

NEW YORK—A team of eye specialists repaired a small break in the retina of the Duke of Windsor's right eye and reported that the difficulty should not recur. The repair work took 30 minutes.

OTTAWA—Private Warren Weston, 18, is in the Tri-Service Hospital here in serious condition with an undetermined illness. A member of his family said he is believed to have been bitten by a carrier mosquito in Western Canada where there have been a number of cases of sleeping sickness.

AMSTERDAM—U.S. civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King has received an honorary doctorate at the Free Protestant University here. The Nobel Peace Prize winner was among a group of six honored by the university. Including Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands.

BOSTON—Edward J. (Puschy) McLaughlin, member of a notorious underworld family, was gunned down and killed Wednesday as he boarded a bus to downtown Boston to attend his brother's murder trial. He was the 24th victim in a series of gangland slayings over the last 19 months.

OTTAWA—Two more appeals against capital murder convictions will be heard by the Supreme Court of Canada during its fall session, officials have announced. Added to the list of cases already scheduled are those of Matthew Kerry Smith, 25, of Toronto and Lloyd Dennis Lyding, 25, of Edmonton.

MONTREAL—Industry Minister Drury said Wednesday Opposition critics of the Canada-United States auto agreement "appear to be trying to mislead the public."

NEW YORK—Dr. Stephen Witywsky, 81, since 1964 president of the Ukrainian National Republic in exile, died Monday in hospital.

VANCOUVER—Roger Allan Fulton, 24, of Vancouver, was found guilty of capital murder and sentenced to hang Feb. 8 for the shooting death of Jan Kolderman, assistant manager of a branch of the Commonwealth Trust Company during a robbery May 12.

LONDON—Lady Spencer-Churchill, 80, who suffered a broken right arm in a weekend fall, is reported to be "a little tired."

TORONTO—Fred Hanson, who once broke with Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, says George Hees will be the next national leader of the party.

BOON—Ludwig Erhard was re-elected West German chancellor by the Bundestag lower house by 272 votes to 200 with 15 abstentions.

WASHINGTON—Teamsters union records list more than $500,000 in union expenditures for James Hoffa's legal battles, the labor department reports.

BACK TO SCHOOL. Like to add a dash of variety to the children's school lunch? Spread cheese generously on slices of whole wheat bread. Top with five or six whole, drained sardines. Cover with bread slices which have been spread evenly with butter. Cut into squares for easy handling and wrap securely.

Papers Drop To Lowest 1965 Levels

MONTREAL (CP) — Papers dropped to a low for the year on the closing index but most other sections were steady in moderately active trading.

Paper Bro. dropped 1 1/2 points to 38 1/2. Declines of 1/2 went to B.C. Forest at 23 1/2. Consolidated at 38 1/2, Fraser at 30 1/2, and MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River at 27 1/2.

Canada Cement fell 1 1/2 points to 46 1/2 and Dominion Textile 1/2 to 32. Moore Corp was off 1/2 to 80 1/2.

Quebec Telephone and CPR added 1/2 to 26 and 69.

Machinery issues were fractionally lower with Hawker Siddeley dropping 1/4 to 5 1/2 and Massey-Ferguson 1/4 to 35 1/2.

Industrials Rise

VANCOUVER — Industrials presented a mixed front. Higher prices ruled for Cushman at 14 1/2, for Westcoast at 22 1/2, for Massey-Ferguson at 35 1/2. Offsetting these were drops in MacMillan at 27 1/2, Consolidated at 38 1/2, and Dominion Textile 1/2 to 32.

Mines had dull spots with Western at 4 1/2, Grandco at 3 1/2, and Teck at 14 1/2. Van Metals rose to 21 1/2 to be the day's big trader.

Flurry in Coppers

TORONTO (CP) — A rise in copper futures brought on by the Rhodesian crisis boosted the price of copper issues.

Noranda rose 1 1/2 to 51 1/2 following the announcement the company is increasing its price for copper to overseas buyers by two cents a pound. Falconbridge was ahead 1 1/4 to a high for the year of 108 1/2 and International Nickel and Hudson Bay each among other senior metals.

The industrial list was generally quiet with steel and paper edging downward. Alcan off 1/4 to 104 1/2 and Great Lakes off 1/4 to 29 1/2.

On the plus side, Imperial Bank of Commerce rose 1/4 to 63 1/2. R. L. Crain 1/4 to 30 1/2 and Avco Corp., producers of aircraft parts, 1/4 to 25 1/2.

Maybank was the most active speculative, ahead 1/4 to 21 1/2 cents on 71 1/2 shares. United Buffalo was off one cent to 58 cents after dipping to 55 cents. The company announced it has found no more oil in five drill holes in the Endako area of British Columbia.

Gold remained ahead, while western oil declined. Scurry off 1/4 to 17 1/2 among seniors.

LOSERS Predominate

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to settle back irregularly from its recent upsurge to records. Trading was active.

For the second straight session more stocks declined than advanced.

Ten of the 15 most active stocks advanced.

An increase in the price of copper, in Chile and elsewhere, of the stocks of that industry.

SCM Corp. was the most active issue for the third straight session. It ended with a net loss of 1/4 at 49 1/2 on 164,400.

Explosive Firecrackers Banned Through Area

If a merchant in Greater Victoria sells you explosive-type firecrackers for Halloween he is breaking the law.

An area-wide ban, in effect this year for the first time, Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich have all adopted a uniform bylaw which prohibits the sale, disposal and discharge of explosive-type fireworks such as crackers, bombs and squibs.

There is no law against the sale and discharge of non-explosive fireworks, such as Roman candles, skyrockets and sparklers providing they are used on private property.

OUT OF AREA

Only exception to the bylaw is when special permits are granted by municipal council to groups or organizations for special occasions. Even then the fireworks must be bought outside the municipality.

It is possible now to buy firecrackers of any kind outside the bounds of Greater Victoria in unorganized territory but even this may not be possible another year.

BIG FIZZLE

A Victoria resolution which found general acceptance at the last meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, held here.

will ask the provincial government to impose similar prohibitions on all unorganized territory in the province.

This would seal the leak which has caused concern to local municipalities since the area prohibition was envisaged.

Socred-Liberal Squabble Erupts

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia cabinet minister attacked the federal government's dealings with the provinces Tuesday night, while Resources Minister Laing replied to criticisms levelled at him by other members of the B.C. cabinet.

Provincial Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, speaking to a rally in Burnaby-Coquitlam, charged that Ottawa is trying to seize off-shore mineral rights even though "the British North America Act clearly states that all such rights belong to the provinces."

If the Liberal government treats Quebec with the same ineptitude and stupidity as it has B.C., there is no wonder there are separatists, he said.

Mr. Laing told a meeting in Haney that the Liberal government in Ottawa has made the current economic boom in British Columbia possible.

He said if the Liberals had not changed the economic conditions as they were when they took office in 1963, "Enough money could not have been assembled in Canada to build even one pulp mill."

He noted that six mills are currently under construction in B.C., and others have been firmly committed.

Mr. Laing predicted that the Fraser Valley will be the centre of B.C.'s industrial development. The federal government was trying to assist by offering to pay 37½ per cent of the cost of improving the valley's diking system.

It's never bedtime for your Esso Home Heat serviceman

When things go wrong (like your furnace giving up the ghost) they don't go wrong when they should go wrong—at nice convenient times. They go wrong in the middle of the night. Your Esso Home Heat serviceman knows this sad fact, so he's ready to help you whenever trouble occurs. Twenty-four hours a day. Seven days a week. And an Esso serviceman is likely to put things right faster and more efficiently than anyone else. Why? Because Esso servicemen are the best qualified in the business. Imperial Oil selected them because of that. They're the best trained. Imperial Oil trains them—in its own schools. When an Esso serviceman inspects your furnace, he makes up a "case history" about it. Just like a doctor with a new patient. All this is free, of course. But, more important still, it has behind it Imperial Oil's unqualified guarantee of reliable, competent maintenance—day or night. No wonder you have that nice warm feeling when you use Esso Home Heat Service.

Police Know

Maniac Killer Hunted

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — The maniac killer in Britain's weird mass murder hunt tortured his victims and tape recorded their dying screams, detectives reported Wednesday.

But although they hold recordings of the murders, and even photographs of the mutilated victims, police have found only one of the bodies.

They believe up to eight and perhaps 11 others are buried on the wild northern moorlands where the dismembered body of 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey was found last weekend.

STILL HUNTING

Police seized tape and photographs in a raid on a house in Cheshire near the Pennine Hills where the hunt for the bodies continues.

More tape was found in a suitcase left in a Manchester railway station cloakroom. From tapes and photographs, detectives have built up a casebook of a sadist who enticed young children, got them drunk on wine and then murdered them. If they refused to join perversions.

MASS MURDER

A senior detective said: "This case is beginning to rank as one of the most nauseating mass murder investigations in British history."

Police said they know the killer and are awaiting only to establish an iron-clad case before charging him. Their main difficulty is in finding the bodies.

WINE PARTIES

Scores of detectives have been digging for 10 days on Saddleworth Moor, a desolate stretch of peat bog and rocks on the Yorkshire-Lancashire borders.

Their leaders believe the killer selected his victims from youngsters whom he took on wine-drinking parties on the moor. They know of at least two children who have been on these parties and survived.

Hunters Die Elk Survive Bag Lower

DURANGO, Col. (AP) — Eleven hunters have died in the first four days of Colorado's big-game hunting season. At the same time, the game kill is reported far below last year's bag. Shooting accounted for three deaths and seven men died of heart attacks in the high country west of the Continental Divide.

One hunter was crushed to death beneath a Jeep.

Seven persons are reported missing in wide areas of snow, fog and rain.

A game, fish and parks department spokesman said deer kills are down 41 per cent and elk kills off 22 per cent compared with last year.

The season opened last Saturday.

Chinese 'Invasion Dream' Nonsense, Says Endicott

Fear of Chinese invasion in South East Asia is an opium dream of the West, Dr. James G. Endicott of Toronto, president of the Canadian Peace Congress, said in Victoria Wednesday.

Dr. Endicott was here to address a meeting Wednesday night in the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria. He was in Hong Kong Oct. 8 to 12, trying unsuccessfully to get a flight to Indonesia for an international conference on peace.

The meeting Wednesday was one of the first in a nation-wide campaign he is launching "to mobilize opinion to stop the war in Viet Nam."

BORDER DISPUTE
"China is not sneering into anybody's territory," said the former Chinese missionary, former adviser to Chiang Kai-Shek. Dr. Endicott said the trouble between India and China that flared up over a disputed border — "Nobody knows where the border is."

"China withdrew 10 kilometres behind the disputed area, in hope the matter would be negotiated by India."

SHARP WORDS
"China's current dispute with America over South Viet Nam involves only sharp words from the Chinese side."

"As for North Viet Nam, why should she negotiate with the U.S.?"

Endicott

"North Viet Nam didn't attack the U.S.; the U.S. attacked North Viet Nam."

Dr. Endicott said further there is no proof of North Vietnamese infiltration, "although the Americans do claim they captured five who said they were from the North."

"Negotiations regarding the Vietnamese war have already taken place, in Geneva in 1954. These were the official negotiations. Agreements have already been made. Therefore, it is not necessary for Johnson to demand other negotiations."

Dr. Endicott said that what Johnson really wants is not negotiations, but the surrender of the Viet Cong and the establishment of an American-selected government in Saigon, the capital of the South.

"The American war is now being conducted in the name of anti-Communism and the right of American armed intervention against any government they consider undesirable."

Dr. Endicott said he is pleading for the right of self-determination.

THEIR BUSINESS

"If the South Vietnamese decide to elect a Communist government, that is their business."

The speaker said the people of the world must adjust to the fact one-third of the world is Communist, that we must learn to get along with each other through peaceful co-existence.

He said we must also recognize the inevitability of changes in Latin America.

NUCLEAR WAR

"Does any man in his right senses believe you can maintain the present system?"

"Far-reaching social reforms will take place that will be liked by the Communists and disliked by the big capitalists."

"If the capitalists say because of danger we are going to suppress all change, then we are headed for nuclear war, the destruction of mankind."

Russia Scores Victory

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union scored a tactical victory in the United Nations Wednesday when the United States failed in its attempt to include a specific condemnation of anti-Semitism in a proposed treaty on the elimination of racial discrimination.

The UN General Assembly's 117-nation social committee approved a Greek-Hungarian proposal to delete from the text of the proposed treaty "any reference to specific forms of racial discrimination."

The vote was 82 to 12, with 10 abstentions. Voting with the U.S. and Israel against the Greek-Hungarian resolution were Canada, Britain, Australia, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Uruguay, Austria, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. France was among those who abstained.

The Soviet Union has asked that the proposed treaty, adopted in 1948 by the commission on human rights, condemn Nazism, neo-Nazism and Zionism after the introduction of a U.S.-Brazilian amendment proposing specific condemnation of anti-Semitism.

The Soviet Union accused Israel of disrupting the harmony of the committee by urging that the proposed treaty specifically condemn anti-Semitism.

POST ALBERTA — A woman from Port is nearing the end of a long, long trail ride.

Helen Alwood, 29, with her companion Joyce Mylon, 33, of Prince George, are nearing the end of a horseback ride from B.C. to the Atlantic.

They have just passed through Truro, Nova Scotia, and are making for Halifax, 60 miles away.

The two left the West Coast April 26, and hope to end the 5,000-mile trip in Halifax in a couple of days.

Cloud-Seeding Possible

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., said Wednesday it is considering the use of cloud seeding to avert a threatened water shortage at its upcoast Powell River newsprint plant.

Officials said the level of Powell Lake is several feet below its 10-year average for this time of year.

The water is used to generate power and in the newsprint manufacturing process. If the lake water level cannot be raised before the winter months, production may have to be reduced, the announcement said. MacPowell is conferring with a Denver, Colo., firm which specializes in cloud seeding to extract a greater volume of water from existing rain clouds. The firm has been used in the past by MacPowell here.

Duke, the Doberman Missing

The Nightingales go to bed reluctantly and sadly these days—Duke has disappeared. Duke, a 12-year-old black-and-tan Doberman, Pincher dog, has been missing from his home at 130 Blue Ridge Road for two weeks.

"This is the first time in 12 years he has disappeared for longer than two days," David Nightingale said Wednesday, "and on those occasions it was usually to enjoy a little female companionship."

Mr. Nightingale said the dog had been the "constant companion and pet" of his 14-year-old son Bill and "was sorely missed."

Duke has been with the Nightingale family since birth. "We would rather hear he was 'We would rather hear he was happened to him," he said.

The Nightingales can be reached at GR 9-3853.

Island-Interior Rail Link Proposed

PORT McNEILL—A B.C. Interior to Vancouver Island rail link has been proposed by Conservative candidate Bill Macadam, Comox-Alberni.

Mr. Macadam, reviving an old proposal for a railroad from the interior to the coast with a link to the Island, said here Wednesday this would be a project he would urge on the government if elected MP for Comox-Alberni.

He said several surveys, the first going back to 1867, have shown the best route from the interior of the province to the coast is down Bute Inlet.

From there, three spans connecting two smaller islands could be constructed establishing a link with the Island.

Former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton made the same proposal in Vancouver last week, as one of a series of projects for B.C. development.

Mr. Hamilton said the government should resurrect the survey and get a cost estimate on bridges across the islands from the mainland to the Island.

He said the longest bridge on the route would be less than one-half mile.

Mr. Macadam said the creation of such a railroad link would lead to tremendous development throughout northern Vancouver Island.

He said it would probably be most economic if the rail link was built by the CPR, with federal financial support.

Mr. Macadam pointed out who ever builds the railway, possibly even the B.C. government, it would require federal support.

He pointed out CPR did the original surveys, which are now in the archives in Victoria. The Conservative candidate said when the surveys were first made, the Bute Inlet route was considered the logical path of the railway, with Victoria as the terminal.

He said "only the rapid growth of Vancouver changed plans to send the railway down the more difficult Fraser Canyon route."

Mr. Macadam pointed out the CPR's E & N link now runs up the Island from Victoria to Courtenay, and a private railway runs up through the Nimpkish Valley.

He said the only "missing link" is a 40-mile stretch from Courtenay to the southern end of the Nimpkish Valley.

Mr. Macadam told the Colonist, shortly before speaking to a political rally, that the railway would meet other railway traffic at Kamloops.

He said it would be a freight line, carrying wheat from the Prairies and potash from Saskatchewan.

He said this railway would enable deep sea ships to pick up cargoes for the Orient at Port Alberni, where port facilities could be greatly expanded.

Mr. Macadam said other inlets on the west coast of the Island would make excellent deep-sea ports to relieve the congestion in Vancouver and New Westminster.

He claimed recently cargo for the Orient has been shipped from the east coast because of the western port situation.

He predicted a major export which will necessitate expanded Island ports is potash.

"This will soon overtake wheat as our major export to the Orient. China and many other Asian countries are very short of potash."

He said boxcars are now coming to the Island at Nanaimo to pick up lumber. "They are coming here empty and going back full; they could be carrying full cargoes here."

The young Conservative said he could foresee the construction of many new harbors, and the enlargement of already existing facilities which would bring increased economic benefits and link between the municipality and the interior of the province.

and villages in Comox-Alberni riding.

Mr. Macadam claimed construction of the railway and new port facilities would ease the congestion in Vancouver and enable Canada to fulfill her trade obligations.

"We are continually expanding our trade with the Pacific region," he said. "I feel this program must have a priority rating in the economic and transportation planning of the next government."

Campbell River chamber of commerce recently launched a campaign for a transportation link between the municipality and the interior of the province.

Pearson Places Honesty on Line

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

CALGARY—Prime Minister Pearson answered the morality in government issue here Wednesday by laying his own personal record of integrity on the line before some 1,800 enthusiastic supporters.

"I've been in public life since 1928—on the official and political side—and in that time I have tried to act with honor and honesty."

"I will have to let my record during that time speak for me."

NEVER

"I hope and believe I will never be guilty of wrongdoing or, perhaps what is just as important for a leader of a government or party, of condoning wrongdoing," he said.

Then he added with great conviction: "But I will never convict on false evidence or no evidence."

The crowd, which had paid $1 a head to have lunch with the prime minister, was by far the largest and most responsive he has drawn in western Canada.

It was warmed up by swinging Dixieland jazz provided by the Stampede City Stompers. Mr. Pearson established a good rapport almost immediately by tackling the three major issues in the area.

DENIED CHARGE

On medicare he denied a charge by New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas that his party was abandoning its pledge to provide nation-wide universal medical care insurance.

And he hit back at Alberta's Social Credit Premier Manning who is fighting the compulsory aspect of the federal plan.

"Liberalism is moving down the middle road between the two extremes . . . in that position we are shot at by both sides," he said.

NDP Candidate

Tories, Grits Fail Over Automation

Neither of the old-line parties had really looked into the threat of automation, Equimall-Saanich NDP runner Len Stephenson told Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night.

Regional College On Agenda

The Victoria area's three school boards meet tonight to hear a report on the potential demand for a regional college.

The report, prepared jointly by the districts' school superintendents, examines the need for a college, probable attendance, and forecasts what sort of courses might be offered.

Craigdarroch Castle will be the scene of the meeting of the Greater Victoria, Sooke and Saanich boards.

Meanwhile, representatives of the three boards today are to meet Dr. Neil Perry, deputy minister of education, to discuss a vocational school planned for Victoria.

Mr. Stephenson, himself a union barber, warned that by 1970 a million and a half new jobs would need to be found in Canada because of the combined effects of automation, immigration and natural population growth.

He said without planned economy which would create the jobs, such as the New Democrats urged, Canada was bound for a recession. "I am not so sure we are not bound for one anyway," he added.

RETRAINING

Mr. Stephenson said there were two ways to meet automation, a retraining program paid for by the federal government, and a portable pension. Victoria NDP candidate J. Lloyd Breerton said an apathetic Canadian public "can't see where we are going" and asked why the call for social reforms, once clear and shrill, is now muzzled and muffled.

HANDSOME PAY-OFF

He said whenever there was an attempt to go forward it was labelled Communist and bad. The welfare state was another bugbear of the Canadian public, while it had paid off handsomely in countries such as Britain and Sweden, he said.

Violence Near in BA Oil Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Geddes, B.C. president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said Tuesday night the strike against British American Oil Co. is fast approaching the violent stage.

Mr. Geddes, addressing the Vancouver and District Labor Council, charged that RCMP had used "storm trooper tactics" Tuesday when they pushed pickets out of the way of company trucks at the BA marketing plant in suburban Burnaby.

The RCMP pulled, pushed, shoved, knocked pickets down on the street and stepped on their signs," Geddes said.

"The pickets were incited by police, called by the company. If there had been a riot—and it was within an eyelash of being one—the company would have been at fault."

Mr. Geddes said an oil truck had left the marketing depot at 25 to 30 miles an hour, "knocking pickets helter skelter."

A company statement, however, said pickets had jumped on the truck's running board and hood, hung open the driver's door and pounded windows.

The picket line skirmishes came shortly after the Liberian tanker BA Canada docked at the marketing terminal with more than 5,000,000 gallons of refined products such as gasoline and fuel oil from the Caribbean.

Pickets said the tanker contained enough to keep BA service stations in British Columbia supplied for two months.

British American operations here and as far east as Ontario have been struck since last month in a wages and automation dispute.

Loffmark Quits Mission For Unexpected Trip

FRANKFURT (Reuters)

Ralph R. Loffmark, British Columbia minister of industrial development, had to leave the trade mission he led to Belgium, the Netherlands and West Germany in Frankfurt Wednesday to go to London.

His place as leader was taken by Tom L. Sturgess, deputy minister.

No reason was given for his departure.

The mission of 180 B.C. executives has come to Europe, in the words of Sturgess, "to sell a little maybe, to buy a little maybe, but chiefly to start off joint participations."

He told members of the Frankfurt Chamber of Commerce during a reception Wednesday night.

"We have the raw materials and you have the know-how and technical experience," it was hoped German companies would come to British Columbia and set up enterprises there, making use of the vast resources of the province, he said.

It was also hoped to get official West German representation at the British Columbia international trade fair in 1967 and some German companies to exhibit there, he added.

The mission will go to Hamburg today and leave for home from Amsterdam Oct. 26.

First Report Written Only

First report cards of first and second grade pupils in Greater Victoria will be written comments only.

District superintendent John Gough explained this week letter grading for the initial reports is considered too inaccurate. Subsequent reports through the year will revert to letter grades.

Hidden Weight Winners' Draw Set for Sunday

State Tour

On state tour, ambassador of France to Canada, Francois Leduc, will visit Victoria Oct. 29 and will be guest of Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes for formal dinner. Ambassador, accompanied by his wife and one of four daughters, will be in B.C. for four days. Mayor of municipality near Paris, he was chairman of board of Radio Station Europe before his nomination to Ottawa.

King Fisherman Contest hidden weight winners for fish entered in September will be announced Sunday.

There is still time to get in on more hidden weight draws. There will be a draw for all fish entered by Colonist subscribers during October, and all entries by subscribers for the six months of the contest will be entered for the draw for the grand hidden weight prizes of a Canadian Pacific Airlines all-expense-paid trip for two to Rome, a Vancouver Island Helicopters weekend camping-fishing trip for two, and an aluminum car-top boat.

South Africans Get Bitter Pill

By STANLEY UYS

CAPE TOWN (CPNS) — South Africa's 3½ million sport-loving whites have been as upset as they now are over the realization that New Zealand will probably not send an All Blacks rugby team to tour South Africa in 1967.

This follows Dr. Verwoerd's announcement that Maoris will not be allowed to enter South Africa with the All Blacks team because racially mixed sport is contrary to apartheid policy.

The Prime Minister explained this policy in terms of "when in Rome do as the Romans do."

The South African rugby Springboks in New Zealand, he points out, played against Maoris there because that is the custom in that country; similarly, when

New Zealanders come to South Africa, they must not bring Maoris with them because social segregation of the races is the custom in this country.

New Zealanders reply that this is an over-simplification. It is their custom, they say, to select their teams without regard to race, and that what Dr. Verwoerd is asking them to do is to abrogate this custom and choose their players on an apartheid basis — that is, to send an all-white, non-Maori team to South Africa.

Most commentators in New Zealand and South Africa, except that the planned 1967 All Blacks tour of South Africa will be cancelled now, and the pro-Government Press in South Africa is speculating already on the consequences of this break with New Zealand. Increasing isolation has been prophesied for South Africa in international sport.

DEEP DISAPPOINTMENT

The pro-Government Press has not tried to disguise the fact that Dr. Verwoerd's ban on the Maoris has caused deep disappointment among South Africans. The unpopularity of the announcement can be gauged by the fact that the Minister of the Interior, Senator de Klerk, thought it necessary to make a national broadcast stating that Dr. Verwoerd was not voicing his personal views, but Cabinet opinion, when he made the announcement.

Other government circles have rallied to Dr. Verwoerd's support, applauding his decree, and affirming that if concessions are made in apartheid policy, while rule in South Africa is deemed. Angry government supporters, who have written letters to the press about the ban, have been warned that relaxation of social customs leads inevitably to the loss of political power.

HE'S CONSISTENT

In his refusal to yield an inch on apartheid, Dr. Verwoerd has always been consistent. His own description of his policy is that it is "granite-like." His premise is that one concession leads to another, and that in a country like South Africa, with 3½ million whites and 13 million non-whites, the only safe policy to pursue is a rigid one.

The clearest exposition of the importance of the Maori ban has come from the state-controlled Radio South Africa. "At present," it said, "South Africa is riding the crest of a wave of major achievements in the field of international sport. Our cricketers have won the series in England, our tennis players give an excellent account of themselves. Karen Muir has set up a world record for swimming. Gary Player continues to reduce golf to a game of almost mechanical precision, and our rugby Springboks seem to have found their feet in New Zealand.

They are a sport-minded, healthy, outdoor people and our sportsmen are enjoying the flush of success; but we must take care that our elation does not inhibit our sense of judgment."

The broadcast alleged that "elements" everywhere were trying to force South Africa to change its policy, and that "delicate situations" were being created, and political, economic and social pressures exerted. In spite of pressures and threats, at the United Nations and elsewhere, of arms embargoes, and of warnings of economic sanctions and military actions, South Africa was refusing to deviate from its policies. The pressures and threats had had no real effect.

UNIFYING ELEMENTS

"On the contrary," said Radio South Africa, "they have been valuable unifying and morale-boosting elements in our national life."

This is the key word—unity. The Verwoerd government is working feverishly to create a united white front to deter its foreign enemies from intervention.

White unity is possible, however, only if the English-speaking section, or a large section of it, transfers its support from the opposition to the government. At least 40 per cent of the 3½ million whites support the opposition, and this is the obstacle in Dr. Verwoerd's progress which he is trying to remove.

Coleman Top Rusher

Bad Wrist Halts Riders' Reed

REGINA (CP) — An injured wrist has done to George Reed, Saskatchewan Roughriders full-back, what the defensive lines of other Canadian football league teams failed to do — move him out of first place in the Western Football Conference rushing race.

According to statistics released Tuesday by WFC statistician Lovell Coleman of Calgary by Bill Hawrylak, Reed trails four yards.

LAST YEAR'S KING

Coleman, the 1964 winner, has gained a total of 1,360 yards in 213 carries for an average gain of 6.4 yards. Reed, who had led the race since Sept. 16, gained only 26 yards in Roughriders' game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers and now has a total of 1,356 yards on 227 carries, an average of six yards per carry. Joe Kapp of B.C. Lions continued to lead the league's quarterbacks in most categories. Kapp completed only 13 of 31 passes for 172 yards against a vicious Hamilton Tiger-Cat defence brought his total to 182 completions in 338 attempts for 2,508 yards, all tops in the league. Kapp was second in touchdowns passes thrown, 12, and had the same number of passes intercepted.

Ron Lancaster, Roughriders' quarterback, had completed 147 passes in 283 attempts for 2,320 yards.

MOST INTERCEPTED

Lancaster was ahead in touchdown passes with 13 but had a league-leading 23 passes intercepted.

Quarterbacks Bill Reidell of Edmonton and Eagle Day of Calgary were tied for the lead in number of passes intercepted. Each had allowed only eight passes to fall into enemy hands.

TAKING TURNS

End Tommy-Joe Coffey of Edmonton and flanker Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan continued to play catch-as-catch-can with the defensive halfbacks in the league. The pair have taken turns in leading the league in pass receiving since the season opened.

Coffey now leads with 68 receptions for a total of 1,083 yards, an average gain of 16 yards a pass.

Campbell held his lead in yards gained. He had 66 receptions for a record 1,228 yards and a league-leading average gain of 18.6 yards.

Randy Kerbow of Edmonton held on to his lead as top punter in the league. Kerbow had punted 102 times for a total of 4,364 yards, an average kick of 42.7 yards.

Martin Fabi of Saskatchewan was second with 84 punts for an average of 42.4 yards.

Gene Wlasiuk of Saskatchewan, perennial leader in punt returns, stayed in top spot.

Wlasiuk had returned 71 punts for an average of 6.3 yards and a total of 452, all tops in the league.

Jockey Injured

SPOKANE (AP)—Jockey Lloyd Cowie, 30, of Calgary, was injured seriously Tuesday when he fell from a horse during the sixth race at Playfair.

He was hospitalized with internal injuries.

A Playfair spokesman said Cowie fell from his mount, Mister Intellect, when the horse hit another horse's heel. Mister Intellect was not injured.

'I Must Win'

Last Chance For Tiger?

NEW YORK (AP)—The Tiger is hungry and on the prowl.

This doesn't scare middleweight champion Joey Giardello. He's prepared to tie the knots in the Tiger's tail tonight.

"This could be the last chance for me, so I must win," says Nigerian Dick Tiger. "I will win."

"That's nice," said Giardello, "but I hate to disappoint him. I'm gonna win. The thing that scares me is that I'm too confident. I can't see how I can lose."

The hard training was out of the way for both 160-pounders and now they had the long wait until they climb into the Madison Square Garden ring at 10 p.m. EDT Thursday night for their 15-round return title fight. Giardello, who took the title from Tiger at Atlantic City, N.J., Dec. 7, 1963, has won nine straight in nearly three years. At 36, he feels he still has a couple more years to collect the big money that eluded him through most of his 18-year pro career.

"Those 8-to-5 odds favoring him are crazy," said Giardello. "I was a 3-to-1 underdog when I took the title fight from him and I can't see why I shouldn't beat him again. His style is made to order for me."

Tiger, 35, figures he doesn't have to change much of his style. All he wants, he said

John D Charges

Means Test Looms

By RON COLLISTER

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

RENFREW, Ont.—Tory leader John Diefenbaker last night accused the government of rescuing the means test in its new proposals for higher pensions in the house of commons.

He called the means test the "meanest test of all" and promised that a Tory government would abolish its present use in the case of blind and crippled people.

"While we are trying to remove it," he told a rally at Renfrew, "the Prime Minister is trying to apply it to the old people of Canada."

Mr. Pearson, he said, had countered that money to cover a pension raise from $75 to $100, suggested by the Tories, could not be taken from the funds of the Canada Pension Plan.

FUND USED

But he pointed out, Health Minister Judy Lamarch is taking more than $2,000,000 out of the funds of the plan to cover advertisements now appearing in newspapers across the country.

"This," he said, "is electioneering at the cost of the Canadian people."

Miss Lamarch says "it isn't going to cost you anything, but she's going to take it out of your money."

RICH LAND

Mr. Diefenbaker was hailed as "the comeback prime minister" as he campaigned in the rich farmland of the Ottawa Valley.

The title was provided by Paul Yakabuski, Tory M.P. for Renfrew South.

Earlier, at a rally in nearby Cobden, Mr. Diefenbaker called for changes in the criminal code to deal with hate literature that is pouring through the mails.

PROPAGANDA

"He was talking about his concern for protecting the rights of Jewish people and added:

"I am absolutely convinced that there is a need today for action in parliament against hate propaganda, while at the same time protecting and preserving freedom of speech."

Mr. Diefenbaker warned that where discrimination is practiced, "there you have the beginnings of communism."

Mr. Diefenbaker, who has been away from the capital for 21 days, returns home for a few hours today, then starts out again, at Brockville, Ont., tonight, then through Ontario and across the country.

How Shell Home Comfort helps you beat the cold

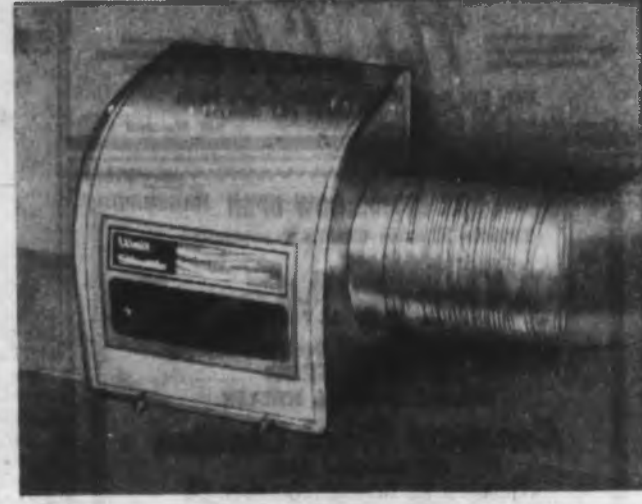

Shell offers a wide variety of products for home comfort—all at low cost. You can buy a modern new furnace for about $4.50 a month. A new burner for $1.95 a month. A water heater for $3 a month. Shell guarantees its equipment for up to 10 years—and gives you special free services. Read on and clip coupon below for free booklet.

1. Modern, compact furnace. Banish chilly rooms, gain extra space with Shell's new forced-air furnace. Every room is properly heated. Includes burner, controls, humidifier, full-flow air filters, and fan operation for summer cooling. Finished in two-tone baked enamel. Guaranteed for 10 years. $4.50 a month

2. Cut fuel costs 20% or more. New scientifically designed burner gives an unusually precise mixture of air and oil. As a result, it can save you considerable money in heating costs over an old burner. Ensures peak combustion during cold winter nights, too. $1.95 a month

3. No more dry, stuffy air. Automatic humidity control helps you feel more comfortable. Also reduces harmful drying-out of carpets, furniture and woodwork. Shell has a complete range of humidifiers, portable and furnace models. Pay on 24-month plan. $4.00 a month

4. More hot water, faster. You'll never be short of hot water again. Shell water heaters work astonishingly fast. Example: our 32-gallon model can produce 90 gallons of hot water in one hour. An electric heater of similar size normally produces only 20 gallons per hour, a gas heater 30 gallons per hour. $3.00 a month

5. New oil-fired boilers. Choose from a range of powerful boilers for hot water heating. Each unit is compact, completely automatic and operates at minimum cost. Jacket is finished in baked enamel and insulated with fibreglass. Full-width panel opening lets you read gauges easily. Buy or lease. $6.50 a month

6. Electronic air cleaner. Keeps your home wonderfully clean and fresh. Eliminates dust, dirt, pollen and other irritating particles. Especially helpful for people who have certain allergies. Installs easily in the ductwork of your present heating system. Push-button control (above) goes in your living area. $5.78 a month

7. Remarkably pure heating oil. Shell Heating Oil is so clean and pure it is actually a champagne-coloured liquid. It is also unquestionably safe; you could extinguish a match in it. Shell Heating Oil gives you all the heat possible and is about the most economical way to heat your home.

8. Free emergency service. During the heating season, your Shell heating expert answers all emergency calls on a 24-hour basis. If anything goes wrong with your heating equipment, at any time, just call. He also provides free conditioning service and regularly inspects and tunes-up your heating system.

La Boheme Superb Film

By WILLIAM THOMAS

If you are having people in for bridge today tell them you are going to see your doctor. If you were going to see your doctor, cancel the appointment. No matter how you make the time you must, for today you have to see La Boheme.

It's one of those rare offerings which fulfill all the superlatives. The La Scala film at the Royal Theatre is superb.

Mirella Freni is so convincing as Mimì that there were more than a few in my row who had to stifle a tear or two. Her acting of the tubercular seamstress almost matches her fluid, soaring soprano voice.

Even Tebaldi at her best would have a hard time matching this voice. Her operatic aria in the chilly garret is exquisite.

Miss Freni removes forever the misconception that the death scene in the last act is a ridiculous charade.

Her duet with Rodolfo, sung by Gianni Raimondi, is both touching and convincing.

La Scala Production Fulfills Expectations

Raimondi

Freni

Mr. Raimondi, too, is a master craftsman. His sotto voice is well controlled and adds to the intimacy that might easily have been lost in wide screen Technicolor.

The role of Musetta was considered quite secondary by Puccini but Adriana Martino has joined the distinguished list of sopranos who almost steal the show with their interpretation.

She must join Ljuba Welitsch as one of the great sopranos to sing the Waltz Song in the second act.

The café scene is one of the best ever. Franco Zeffirelli has brought us a delightful set and dressed the production to perfection. What Cecil Beaton did for My Fair Lady Zeffirelli has done for La Boheme.

Herbert Von Karajan has given us almost the full score including most of the recitative but it is not tedious.

The staging and direction from basso Iv Vinco's twiddling of his cigar to Musetta's antics with her shoe are perfect and compound the enjoyment.

There are only two more performances of the La Scala film at the Royal Theatre—at 2:00 and 8:30 p.m. today.

If you miss this I pity you. I am going again.

Wizard Avoids 156 Queries

WASHINGTON (AP)—Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton left the witness box Wednesday still silent about his and Ku Klux Klan income, but under threat of a possible citation for contempt of the U.S. Congress.

During two days of questioning by the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities, the Klan head wrapped himself in the constitutional protection against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions. He told the committee nothing but his name, his birthplace—Tuscaloosa, Ala.—and his age—36.

Temporarily excused as a witness, Shelton described the investigation as an attempt "to curry political favor with a group that has flouted the law all over the country."

His statement, read to reporters outside the hearing room, apparently referred to Negroes. He said the white-supremacist Klan would "find out who are the true manipulators behind this investigation."

The committee wanted him to talk about any share he received of Klan dues and rally collections and about the financing of such amenities as an expensive car.

It was curious about his hardship discharge from the U.S. Air Force during the Korean War to help out in a family grocery store. He promptly went to work for a tire company.

There were questions about cheques drawn on the account of the Alabama Rescue Service, which committee chairman Edwin E. Willis (Dem. La.) called a "phony-front outfit" for the United Klans of America, the biggest of the various Klan federations in the U.S. and the one Shelton heads.

FINANCIAL ROW
The committee was curious also about stories Shelton had been fired as an officer of a predecessor Klan federation in a row over finances.

Another inquiry was about bank records purporting to show he received some $4,000 from the Dixie Engineering Company of Mobile, Ala., payments that Willis said appeared to be made by rather unwilling victims.

POLICE MONITORING
The committee asked also about radio equipment—citizens' band receivers and transmitters, licensed for business purposes, and other gear that seemed capable of monitoring police calls.

What the committee got from Shelton was a formula, repeated 156 times, invoking the protection of the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination.

First Concert At Playhouse

The Board of Directors of the Victoria Musical Art Society met at the home of the president Mrs. S. G. Watts, when plans were finalized for the opening of the season.

The first concert will take place on Sunday, Oct. 24, at 3 p.m., in the McPherson Playhouse, when two outstanding Canadian artists will perform.

Miss Eilreda Sewell, violinist, and Robert Rogers, pianist.

The members of the Studio Group will be hostesses at a reception to be held in the foyer following the recital.

The president reported that the Scholarship Fund had been increased by $250 as a result of an artistic recital given recently by Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberto Wood.

Mr. Douglas Abbott was welcomed as a new member to the Board.

Joint Project?

Department Releases 18 Acres

The defence department has untied 18 of the 3,000 acres of prime ocean front property it owns in the Greater Victoria area.

Skillings

The tract has been released for use for a joint Colwood-Langford-Metchosin centennial project, possibly a swimming pool and later skating, curling, bowling and gymnasium facilities and outdoor playing areas.

The defence department owns all vacant land between the CNR right of way at Colwood Corner and Wilfert Road.

BY ORDER
The land was released by order of Prime Minister Pearson at the urging of Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate James Gorst.

Conservative member in the last Parliament George Chatterton said Wednesday he was instrumental in cancellation of the private lease on the property when he was elected in 1961.

TIMING RIGHT
"I thought the land should be retained for public use," he said.

"The timing is rather significant," he said, presumably referring to the current federal election. "Previously it had been rejected by the present government."

Some of the most beautiful land in the Greater Victoria area is held by the department, Mr. Chatterton said. And it should be released for public enjoyment and recreation.

Business Leader Dies, 57

A well-known Victorian, Frank Gordon Skillings, died suddenly at his home Wednesday.

Mr. Skillings, 57, of 3005 Craigowan, was president of Victoria Van and Storage and president of F. G. Skillings in Nanaimo.

Born at 1152 Burdett, he was educated at University School.

ATHLETE
A well-known athlete in his youth, Mr. Skillings was a member of the James Bay Athletic Association and a member of the B.C. rugby team which played in Japan during the early '30s.

He was considered one of the best athletes of the country at the time and was very active in track and field, and basketball.

IN ARMY
During the First World War, he was a member of the 5th Regiment but did not see active duty.

Mr. Skillings was sole owner and president of Victoria Van and Storage, founded by his father in 1904 as Victoria Baggage.

SOLD SHARE
The company, at the father's death in 1937, was taken over by the three brothers, Stewart, Waldo and Frank.

Stewart Skillings was named president and held the post until his retirement eight years ago when he sold his share to Frank.

FOUNDED FIRM
Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings had sold his share to the two brothers 14 years before.

Frank Skillings founded F. G. Skillings and Sons of Nanaimo a transfer and oil company, eight years ago.

GOLFER
He was also secretary of the family-owned businesses, Skillings Holding Company and Skillings Brothers of Vancouver.

Mr. Skillings was a member of the Royal Colwood Golf Club. In addition to his brothers he is also survived by his wife Velda Rithet Skillings and four sons, John and Roderick of Victoria, and Douglas and Robert of Vancouver.

Five Students For Seminar
Five University of Victoria students have been invited to attend a science seminar in Seattle Oct. 25.

They are John Matthews and Sydney Bulman-Fleming, both physics students, Donna Smyth and Jane Turner, both in the department of English, and Donald Patriarche, a chemistry student.

The seminar will also honor American scientist Dr. Warren Weaver.

Colorful Consolation

Ban on fireworks isn't all bad, says 12-year-old Janice Deall, 1897 Carleton, as she snuggles up to armful of display pyrotechnics which are allowed under new legislation. Explosive types are now outlawed by Greater Victoria municipalities. See story, Page 11.—(Robin Clarke)

Second Candidate

Former Navy Firefighter In Esquimalt Council Race

Elphick

A second candidate has entered the race for Esquimalt council.

Former naval fire fighter Roy Elphick, 1191 Munro, a resident of Esquimalt for 12 years, will contest the seat left open by Coun. George Angyle who is running for Reeve. Other candidate is Russell Atkinson.

Mr. Elphick, 42, is now on the office staff at Western Lumber Carriers.

ARDENT FISHERMAN
"I have watched with satisfaction the growth of Esquimalt during the past 12 years that I have been a property owner here. I have been pleased with the orderly development and appreciated the efforts and policies of the council for the past few years," Elphick said Wednesday night.

Viet Nam Film Coming

U. S. journalist and TV news reporter Kenneth Armstrong will present his film on South Viet Nam Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior high school auditorium.

The film is the first of seven travelogues being brought to Victoria this winter by the adult education department of the Greater Victoria School Board.

Debbie Johnson laughing at something funny in class ... Dorothy MacKinnon running through old coins ... Don Hauser talking about his bowling.

Teachers Reject Offers

Esquimalt and Saanich teachers Wednesday rejected salary increase offers by their school boards.

The counter-proposals were identical with that made and rejected Tuesday in bargaining with Greater Victoria teachers.

The Sooke teachers have asked increases ranging from $200 yearly to $800 for highly-qualified teachers.

PUBLIC
"We are planning to call a public meeting in the near future," said Dr. Morgan. He said Mr. Bracewell had not investigated the possibility of View Royal as a town.

"This was not Mr. Bracewell's fault as it wasn't in his terms of reference," he said.

Foreign Policy Queries Ignored by Two-Thirds

Election Notebook By Ian Arrol

Only three candidates of the nine in the federal ridings of Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich have replied to a Voice of Women questionnaire on Canadian foreign policy sent them two weeks ago.

Mrs. Valerie MacDermot, president of Victoria Voice of Women, said replies have come from Frank Hunter (Social Credit, Victoria), Len Stephenson (NDP, Esquimalt-Saanich) and W. S. E. Morrison (Communist, Victoria).

"Most candidates seem to be playing down foreign policy," said Mrs. MacDermot.

"We are going to launch a campaign through the election titled Make Foreign Policy the Basis for Your Choice," she said.

All announced candidates in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich federal constituencies have now filed officially with their returning officer — with the exception of W. S. E. Mor-

Ikeya-Seki Came and Went Cloud Blots Comet Show

If you missed seeing comet Ikeya-Seki this morning because of the weather, cheer up; another one's on the way.

It's poor consolation, though, Comet Alcock will be visible from now until Nov. 6 only with the aid of a telescope.

As in much of the rest of the continent, cloud today was expected to eliminate Victoria's last dawn chance for a view of the fast-moving comet.

Later today Ikeya-Seki is to move behind the sun, and when it re-emerges it is not expected to be as prominent.

Officials at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., described the comet as looking like "a very bright star with wings and a tail."

Merger Discussion Set for Ratepayers

A general ratepayers' meeting will be called in View Royal early in November to discuss the Bracewell report which recommends amalgamation with Esquimalt.

Ratepayer chairman Gar Bulmer said Wednesday he was hoping the View Royal executive would meet with Esquimalt council for a discussion before the general meeting.

Since the issue of amalgamation first came up Mr. Bulmer said he had received phone calls accusing him of being in favor of amalgamation and other calls suggesting he was in favor of an independent township.

ONE CONCERN

"I personally am not concerned which way we go about it but I do know we must get organized in View Royal. That is my concern," said Mr. Bulmer.

At the last special meeting the executive was empowered to approach Esquimalt for information on amalgamation and report back to the general membership.

GENERAL MEETING
At the meeting with Esquimalt it was decided to hire former deputy minister of municipal affairs B. C. Bracewell to make a study of the situation between Esquimalt and the unorganized territory.

"The general meeting will consist of presentation of the Bracewell report," said Mr. Bulmer. He said the executive had invited Mr. Bracewell to attend the general meeting.

SUPPORT FOUND
And while all this is going on another group in View Royal is picking up support for forming a township.

Group spokesman Dr. R. W. Morgan, 55 Tovey Crescent, said the group now had upward of 50 supporters and had been receiving unsolicited donations for its work.

CATHEDRAL GROVE
Today, Dr. Tawewaki will see 700 to 800-year-old stands of Douglas fir at Cathedral Grove near Port Alberni. He will then travel to Vancouver and on to Portland and San Francisco, before returning to Japan in mid-November.

Garry Oaks A 'Treasure'

Uplands and Oak Bay are like Japan—at least in their stands of Garry Oaks—a Japanese plant geographer said Wednesday.

Here to see B.C.'s forests is Dr. Misao Tawewaki, professor emeritus of the University of Hokkaido.

The 66-year-old professor Wednesday toured Victoria, visited the provincial museum and met scientists at the federal forestry laboratory on Burnside Road.

PACIFIC TREASURE
"The Oak forest is the treasure of the Pacific coast," he said after snapping countless photographs of trees in the Oak Bay area.

"Similar oak stands we have in Japan. It was an unexpected sight and I was very grateful."

Cave Explorer Now Improving
Victoria cave explorer Clarence Hrosek, 1633 Pembroke, is in good condition and "improving daily" in Nelson hospital after suffering a collapsed lung Sunday while on an expedition in the West Kootenays.

His tour, which started Aug. 20, has taken him to Alaska, Colorado, Tennessee, Washington, D.C., New York, Boston and Seattle.

He is studying North American forest management, was particularly interested in coastal vegetation, and capped off his one-day Victoria visit by saying how impressed he was that the people here incorporated natural growth in their gardening and landscaping.

The times and dates are the same for the far-flung Esquimalt-Saanich revisions, but four separate courts will sit:

St. Luke's Church Hall, Cedar Hill Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road; St. Peter's St. Peter's Road at Quadra; the United Church Hall, Carey at Norwood; and St. Martin's-in-the-Field, Obed off Tillicum.

In rural parts of Esquimalt-Saanich, enumerators will conduct their own courts of revision on Thursday only.

Both returning officers expect election machinery will roll smoothly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart wed 50 years.

An 'At Home' Saturday

Celebrating Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, 299 St. Charles Street, who marked their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, will be "at home" to their friends and relatives from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. on Saturday in honor of the occasion. They were married in Victoria on Oct. 19, 1915.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were born and brought up in Scotland. A well-known shoe merchant in the city Mr. Stewart is a charter member and past president of the Victoria Camp of Gideons. He is also a life member of the Gideons International.

Mrs. Stewart, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Davidson, pioneer residents of Pender Island, is a 1910 graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital school of nursing.

The couple has been active for many years in the work of Victoria Gospel Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have six children, and 17 grandchildren. Their children are John, Angus, Robin and Mrs. John W. (Margaret) Woodford, all of Victoria; Mrs. Clem (Phyllis) Alken, Vancouver, and Mrs. David (Jeanie) Cooke, Toronto. The family will all be on hand to help celebrate the big day.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A group of us (all parents) were discussing what goes on with teen-agers today. Some insisted that kids are no wilder than we were when we were teen-agers. These people claimed beleaguered teens are just getting a lot of bad publicity, that the subject of teen-age sexual promiscuity has been beaten to death, that today's kids are the scapegoats for all the ills of a crazy mixed up world.

My wife and I would be interested in hearing what you have to say.—MR. AND MRS.

Dear Mr.: MOST teens are darned good kids, and when you look at the examples set by some of their parents, they look even better.

Statistics indicate that conditions are NOT precisely the same today as when we were teen-agers. There are more kids in trouble today. The trouble is more serious and it comes at an earlier age than ever before. Yes, there are more teen-agers, but I am referring to percentages, not numbers.

In the last 20 years, the percentage of unwed mothers has tripled. Since 1957 the V.D. rate has tripled. (More than 60% of the cases of REPORTED V.D. fall in the 15-19 years old group.) Teen marriages are way up. Divorce is on the increase, and one reason is the sad record of teen-age marriages. (Such marriages have one-fifth as good a chance of succeeding as a marriage between a couple in their middle 20's.)

Teen crime is up. Teen drinking is up. Teen car accidents are up. If this picture doesn't reflect a change in teen-age behavior, then I'm the Queen of Sheba.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you are sick of mother-in-law problems and I hate to bother you with mine, but I need your help.

My husband and I have been married two years. He was transferred to another city five months ago and it was a God-send. His mother would not leave us alone for even one day. I was going out of my mind trying to be nice to her even though she was at our front door before my husband left for work in the morning.

Now that we have moved 200 miles away she says her heart is acting up and she knows she isn't long for this world. So we drive 400 miles every other week-end to see her. She insists that we stay at her house. My folks feel slighted and I don't blame them. My husband and I used to get along fine, but now we argue about this a lot. He says my folks are 15 years younger than his mother and we can stay with them after his mother is gone. I need your help.—BEAT DOEN.

Dear Beat: Sometimes the mothers with the "weak hearts" live longer than their daughters - in - law. Alternate. One trip, stay with your folks; the next trip, with your mother-in-law.

Dear Ann Landers: Keith and I haven't been married very long, three months to be exact. Something is bothering me and I'm afraid it will bother me until we get it talked out.

Keith went with a girl two years before he started to go with me. Everyone who knew them figured they would be married one day. I had seen the girl three or four times but I never got to know her. She was very attractive and had a sweet personality.

Now that Keith and I are man and wife I think he should tell me all about her. I want to know how far they went and exactly why they broke up. I didn't ask him these questions while we were going together because I figured it was none of my business. But now that we are married I think everything that has to do with Keith is my business.

You are a great believer in people being honest with each other. Please print my letter and your answer.—NOTHING WITHHELD

Dear Nothing: What happened between Keith and girl wasn't your business and it's not your business NOW.

I admire him for keeping his trap shut. He sounds like a first-rate guy to me. Keep him happy!

James Bay PTA Elects Slate

New president of the James Bay PTA is Mrs. J. S. Hayhurst of 15 Olympia. She was elected at a meeting held earlier this week.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Amy Labele, vice-president; Mrs. Donna Longstaff, secretary; and Mrs. B. J. Scott, treasurer.

League Plans Box Social

Arrangements were made for the annual Farmerette Box Social at the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League held in the Blue Room on Monday evening.

The social, which will be an informal dance, takes place at 9 p.m., Oct. 29, in the White Eagle Hall. Dancing will be to the music of the Ambassador's orchestra. Tickets are available from any of the members.

Junior League members will sell hotdogs and hamburgers from the Mobile Refreshment Unit which will be set up at Goldstream Park each Sunday from Oct. 31 to Nov. 28 and on Nov. 11 during the upstream run of spawning salmon.

Mrs. W. Ralph reported the sale of tickets for the Western Canadian Open Water Ski Championships in August at Shawnigan netted the Junior League the sum of $45.

To further their work for crippled children League members have planned an auction

Helicopter Flight Saved Lives

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Diana Symons should be writing scripts for a sort of jungle version of The Nurses.

The set would need a small hospital surrounded by dense jungle, and a little cabin right off in the jungle where the nurse from Victoria tried manfully to grow a garden.

"You'll be lucky if a single flower comes up," they told her. But Diana, true-blue Victorian, persevered.

During her two years in Malaya with Medico, which was started by Dr. Tom Dooley, but is now a service of CARE, Diana had many adventures.

There was, for instance, the case of the pregnant woman and the helicopter.

The little hospital at Gombak was the centre of a large area providing care for the aborigines, a small minority of the Malayan population, and still living in widely separated villages in the jungle. Patients needing hospital care are brought from the villages by helicopter—"more quickly in some cases, than city cases get to hospital by ambulance."

Diana explains: "We would go off in the helicopter to pick up the severe cases, especially the obstetrical cases. One time when I saw the patient, I realized, even when we got this case into Gombak it was nothing we could handle. It would still have to be taken into the Kuala Lumpur general hospital.

"The patient was in such a state I was sure she couldn't stand the extra half-hour ambulance ride into the general hospital."

"So I asked the helicopter pilot, a British chap, to fly right in and put the helicopter down in front of the maternity hospital—which I knew he could because there's a flower garden and lawn."

"So down came the helicopter right in the middle of everything. By the time we'd settled there were hundreds of school children (I don't know where they came from) and I think practically all the medical staff, including the head matron all very stiff and starched."

"Then I began to feel a bit of a fool."

"I thought, 'supposing I've misjudged this case.' It was terribly embarrassing, there was even a photographer there."

"But fortunately my guess was right. It was a real emergency. They saved the baby and the mother, which we

Helicopters served as ambulances to bring patients to jungle hospital at Gombak, Malaya, where Diana Symons was on nursing staff for one year of her couldn't have done at Gombak." Of course it wasn't all glamor and high drama.

It was extremely hard work, with only two shifts a day, nurses on the evening shift being on call throughout the night.

There was tremendous responsibility.

"I was expected to do far more advanced procedures than I would here. They have trained native nurses who are very competent and have a lot of responsibility put on them because there are no internes. So registered nurses do the sort of thing an intern normally does. Suturing, intravenous and so on."

Diana's time was equally divided between the jungle hospital at Gombak and the village hospital at Kuala Lipis.

The most prevalent diseases are tuberculosis and malaria, and often doctors combine two medicines. Chinese and western.

"One patient was suffering from malaria. He was in a most terrible state, ill with fever for a week. He'd been having some medicine made of ground up buffalo horn, which hadn't cured him at all. Then he finally accepted our tablets and in one day the fever dropped right off. In this case he was convinced our medicine was good."

Diana told of other practices that shocked the western nurses.

"They rub everything into their sores. Dung is a very popular thing. We were just appalled but it does stop the bleeding. If they get a really bad gash, and it takes several hours to get to the hospital, they've got to do something, and they've found the things that work."

"But as you can imagine, we have an absolute fit, because of the filth."

Education is helping, though. "Many know about germs carrying disease, but they don't all understand it. It's awful hard to explain unseen germs. They still think of disease in terms of evil spirits," she said.

Diana admired the way children were brought up, without the nagging and pushing, as we have to in western society to keep children up to standards. "But I was amazed—Malayan children have temper tantrums just as ours do!"

Diana Symons

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

Members of the consular corps representing countries all over the world will be in Victoria this Saturday.

They will be here to attend the reception to be given by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Peakes on Saturday afternoon at Government House.

Victorians who have attended these parties in former years agree that it is one of the most interesting. So many different nationalities represented.

Turkish Consul, Mr. E. V. A. De Becker and Mrs. De Becker are coming over from Vancouver for the party. Mr. De Becker represents the small colony of Turks now living on the mainland.

Mr. De Becker is probably the only living person with the triple legal qualifications of England, Japan and Canada. At present he is a practicing attorney in Vancouver and is also president of the Canada Japan Society.

He speaks Japanese fluently and lived in that country for many years. Before retiring from Japan in 1955 to live in Spain he was for some years official legal adviser to the British, French, Italian and Swiss embassies in Tokyo.

To Attend Alumni Ball

There are masses of parties being made up for the annual University Alumni ball this Friday at the Empress.

Dean and Mrs. R. B. Jeffels will be at a table with patrons, Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor, University president and Mrs. Taylor, Dr. J. R. Clearhue, chancellor and Mrs. Clearhue. Dean and Mrs. A. J. Wood will also be at this table.

Mr. Floyd A. Fairclough of the University Development Board and Mrs. Fairclough have made up a party with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dalby, Mr. and Mrs. R. Macmillan, Dr. and Mrs. E. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Stapels, Mr. Nils Rjoberg, Miss Shirley Crowe, Mr. and Mrs. John Di Castri and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Rawlings.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hickman will be with Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johns, Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Johns and Dean and Mrs. H. C. Gilliland, and with the David Edgars will be Mr. and Mrs. Colin Creighton, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Creighton, Mr. and Mrs. John Gough, Mr. Alan Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Tingley, Mr. Ian Stewart, Miss Gilliland Edgell, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tate, and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Kenning and Mr. and Mrs. John Godfrey will be together.

Reception Today

Rev. Dr. J. W. L. and Mrs. McLean will be receiving members of their congregation, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, and friends at an informal reception at their Linden Avenue home this afternoon and again in the evening. Anytime from 2:30 to 5 and again at 7:30 p.m.

Their son, Rev. Walter McLean will be here for a brief visit. He arrives this morning and leaves again Friday.

Mr. McLean has been in Nigeria for the past two and a half years and at present is on furlough. He has been on an extensive speaking tour in Eastern Canada and will continue his speaking engagements in the West. He plans to return to Nigeria about the beginning of the New Year.

Surprise Floor Show

The Honkey Tunk Barn Dance that Capital City Yacht Club is putting on at Saanichton hall on Friday night has all the earmarks of being a good party.

For one thing the male members of the club are putting on a surprise floor show. That's almost enough in itself.

The gala are planning a sumptuous buffet to be centred with roast suckling pig. Marg Smyth will be baking the large salmon, yet to be caught, and Maggie Diment will provide the home baked beans.

Decorations in the autumn theme, golds and greens, will be the work of Lyn Middleton.

There are lots of parties being made up for the dance. Going together will be Mr. and Mrs. D. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. R. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. C. Connorton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. D. Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. A. Richards and Mr. and Mrs. E. Irwin.

Meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dill before going out to Saanichton will be Mr. and Mrs. A. Aylward, Mr. and Mrs. H. Monop, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bliss and Mr. and Mrs. J. Dill, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. G. Washington's party will be Mr. and Mrs. W. Harker, Mr. and Mrs. G. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. W. Dutton, Mr. and Mrs. V. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. D. Morrison and Mr. and Mrs. M. Mitchell.

CONTACT LENSES

What do they cost? What are they made of? Can they be worn all the time? More people are interested in and more people are wearing Contact Lenses than ever before, consequently we are asked many questions every day about these miracles of plastic. We have prepared a pamphlet which answers most of the questions you might ask. It is free and we would be glad to send you one.

She asked him not to use a pistol because it was "such a cold impersonal thing," prosecutor Peter Palmes told a court Tuesday at a preliminary hearing.

Wheeler promised to use only his hands... "He said he would do it very gently, indeed it would be more like a caress," Palmes said.

Then Wheeler strangled his wife—and his nine-year-old son and five-year-old daughter.

"Having made up his mind it was quite a long time before he killed his wife. He apparently sat and thought for quite a time before he went in and killed the elder child," the prosecutor said.

"And having killed the boy he laid the body beside the dead woman. Then he sat and thought again before he killed the girl."

Wheeler was committed for trial on charges of murdering his wife and two children in a house trailer last month.

'Just Like Fish'

New Artificial 'Gill' To Assist Diving

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Development of an "artificial gill" that may some day allow men to live indefinitely in undersea houses by tapping their oxygen from seawater—just as fish do—was described Wednesday.

The developer, Dr. Bruce R. Bodell, a Northwestern University surgeon, said that so far, a small version has been used only in rat experiments—with one rodent surviving six days while residing in a glass flask immersed in a tank of water. The rat might well have gone on for weeks if its food hadn't run out.

The artificial gill consists of 2,000 feet of tiny membrane tubes, clumped together like a batch of spaghetti, which allow passage of oxygen from seawater into the flask. Literally, the rat's expired breath draws the seawater oxygen into the flask through the semi-permeable membranes.

"HOUSE" But Dr. Bodell in a report to the 51st congress of the American College of Surgeons, said the experiments suggest the technical feasibility of: Lowering submarine—"like houses" to the bottom of the sea, with about 120 men in each of them, and employing a vast network of surrounding membrane tubes to tap the crew's oxygen supply from the surrounding sea.

DEPENDS ON PRESSURE

The gill, the scientist said, depends on the oxygen in exhaled air—so there is a net gain in oxygen received within the chamber surrounded by the gill.

He said the system also eliminates potentially poisonous carbon dioxide from the "living" chamber, serves as an efficient air conditioner and could even tap fresh water from the salty.

'AIR' FROM SEA

He said nuclear-powered submarines already have systems for tapping oxygen from seawater by an electrolysis process. But this requires plenty of electrical energy, whereas in the gill-equipped undersea houses, only minimum energy would be needed to pump exhaled air from the living room through the water—immersed membranes—to get a payoff of life-sustaining "air" from the sea.

Dr. Bodell said it's conceivable that artificial gills could also be fashioned for skin divers, allowing them to dive to depths of 120 feet, compared with the usual limits of about 30 feet.

Johnson in 'Good Order'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson was pronounced "in very good order" Wednesday and told he can return to the White House whenever he wants.

The good news came 13 days after removal of Johnson's gall bladder and a kidney stone. He celebrated by walking more than a mile, kissing children, putting on a golf green, kidding with military patients, and signing a major bill—the Anti-Air Pollution Act.

In good spirits, the president told reporters as he lounged in the warm October sun "I think

I am as well as you would expect."

He declined to say exactly when he will leave the Bethesda Naval Hospital, although his doctors said he could "at any time after Wednesday night." He probably will stay at the White House for a short while and then leave town—possibly for his Texas ranch—to continue his recuperation.

The president was given an intensive medical examination last night by some of the doctors who performed the operation—Dr. George A. Haldenbeck, the Mayo Clinic surgeon who removed the gall bladder; Dr.

James C. Cain, also of Mayo, is in very good order." An electrocardiogram showed the president's heart was "perfect." In addition, Moyers said, Johnson's blood pressure was "better than that of any of the doctors present, including the youngest."

Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said they found "everything

A Spacious Free Customer Parking Lot At Rear

Drive in from Fisgard Street, across from the Bay, and enter Miss Frith's by the convenient new rear entrance.

The opening of Miss Frith's Fashion Department two years ago, proved to be a tremendous success. As a result we found it necessary to expand last year and increase our fashion area. Due to the growing popularity of Miss Frith's with the fashion conscious women of Victoria, it has become necessary to again increase our facilities. A large new parking lot has been added with canopy to attractive rear entrance. You will find this most convenient when you shop at Miss Frith's. And, you will appreciate the courteous, pleasant sales staff that gives attentive service to any size purchase. Take advantage of their assistance with selection and co-ordination of wardrobe items.

This celebration coincides with the peak of our fall fashions. Shop now, while selections are at their very best, in color and size range.

Thermopylae Club

Famed Clippers in Breeze Again

The days of the China tea-clippers will be discussed tonight when the Thermopylae Club celebrates its 33rd birthday as well as Trafalgar Day.

Celebrations will not hit the heights they did when Trafalgar Day was a top event on Victoria's calendar. Senior members can recall the day when the club attended ceremonies at the Cenotaph with Lieutenant-Governor Fordham Johnson and Mayor David Leeming and the Rainbow Sea Cadets put on a display and served tea. Events were followed by a dinner for the naval veterans. The Thermopylae Club was named after the famous tea clipper and rival of the Cutty Sark.

The Thermopylae sailed from Victoria between 1890 and 1895 in the rice trade.

She was the only full-rigged ship ever to be registered in Victoria.

The club can boast of three members, who sailed around the Horn: Capt. William Gregory, 3881 Cadboro Bay Road; Capt. W. J. Davies, 1749 Adanac, and J. B. White, 1527 Kenmore.

The club's founding skipper, Capt. Alexander McDonald, who held the post from 1932 until 1938, will be represented by his daughter, Mrs. Frank Hunter, who is a member of the club. The 33rd birthday will be celebrated at 8 p.m. in new quarters in the Maritime Museum on Bastion Street.

New Heating Plant for Armory

Installation of a new heating system in the Bay Street Armory will be completed before Christmas.

The $136,000 contract is one of three major contracts now on the drawing boards of Defence Construction Ltd.

Second defence construction job now under way is installation of 400 feet of track for the crane at the first loading dock in Esquimalt, awarded to Burns and Dutton with a bid of $203,000. Completion date is Feb. 25.

A second job being considered for the armory is tearing up of the old main asphalt floors and laying new concrete on the old base. No price has been considered on this job but Defence Construction spokesman said the job would likely come under the winter works program.

The job now under way at the armory involves installation of a 3,000-gallon oil tank under the main entrance; installing two smokeless fully automatic boilers, two circulating heaters and a fresh water heating system for the basement swimming pool. The system will require no supervision.

Altrusa Club Attends Festivities

Mrs. Janet Mesher, president of Victoria Altrusa Club, and members Mrs. A. Wood, Mrs. E. Mahon, Mrs. E. Sealy, and the Misses Marion Bollingbroke, Mona Jewell and Marjorie Siddall, attended the breakfast held at the Empress Hotel Sunday morning in conjunction with Business Women's Week festivities. They also took part in the special church parade to St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral which followed.

The club made plans to hold a Chinese auction in the home of Mrs. Aida Kemp on Oct. 28 with proceeds to be used for education grants through the Altrusa International grants-in-aid fund.

'Nigger' Unpopular Place Name

OTTAWA (CP) — The word Nigger probably will disappear from Canadian maps and Squaw may not be far behind.

The Canadian permanent committee of geographical names announced Tuesday it has agreed unanimously places like Nigger Rapids, Que., should be replaced by unobjectionable names.

Rather than simple substitution of Negro for Nigger, the committee recommended alternative names should be sought.

"We were less than unanimous about the word squaw," said Dr. J. K. Fraser, executive secretary of the committee and chief of the mines department's toponymy study of place names division.

"Some members felt it was not always objectionable, but its use will be studied."

Provinces have the final say on all names within their boundaries but since all provinces have representatives on the federal-provincial committee action on removal of the word Nigger is expected to be prompt.

The same may not apply to the word squaw because all representatives did not agree.

The word Nigger appears 18 times in Canadian maps, although only one, Nigger Rapids, Que., is a settlement. Most of the connections are with geographical features like Nigger John Ridge in Alberta or Nigger Narrows and Nigger Pond in Ontario.

Eight of the 18 names are in Ontario, with five in British Columbia, three in Quebec and one each in Alberta and New Brunswick.

Niggerhead is used three times, all in the Yukon.

Negro is used in 14 Canadian names, mostly in the Atlantic provinces with five each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and two each in Ontario and B.C.

The commission also endorsed proposals to name two features after persons who have died recently: Morden Long, former University of Alberta professor and chairman of the geographical board of Alberta; and Mr. and Mrs. George Black. Mr. Black, a former Speaker of the Commons was an MP and later commissioner of the Yukon and his wife Martha, once won the seat when he was sick and unable to run.

Four Jailed In Drug Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three women and a man were convicted here Wednesday of drug trafficking, concluding the second in a series of six trials brought on evidence obtained by an RCMP undercover agent.

The first trial, concluded Tuesday, ended in an acquittal for James Dilworth, 27, when constable William Duckworth failed to conclusively identify the accused.

In Wednesday's trial, Magistrate Gordon Scott sentenced the man and woman to a total of 30 years in prison after hearing prosecutor Wilfred Heffernan call heroin peddling in Vancouver "a well-organized, ruthless, cold-blooded business."

Carol Radcliffe, 26, and Darlene Thornton, 25, were each sentenced to two five-year concurrent terms. Anna Demarco was sentenced to three years; and Samuel Mark was sentenced to five years and two years, to be served consecutively.

Constable Duckworth testified he bought capsules of heroin from each of the accused at a cafe May 31, and July 15, 26 and 27.

The constable was assigned as an undercover agent April 4.

Korea Given Dairy Loan

SEOUL (Reuters)—The Canadian government has agreed in principle to grant a loan of more than $5,000,000 to South Korea for the import of 5,000 survey the possibilities of dairy milking cows and dairy farm farming in Korea, the spokes equipment facilities, in 1966-67, man added.

All briefs not submitted at public hearings, should be in the hands of the Secretary before Nov. 30th, 1965.

O. R. Bradbrook,
Secretary,
PROVINCIAL REDISTRIBUTION COMMISSION,
Court House Annex,
844 Howe Street, Vancouver 1, B.C.

A fourth youth, Eugene Brabant, pleaded guilty to the charge on Oct. 12 and was fined $50.

Acquitted were James Morino, of 416 Cecilia, Donald Buckner and Rodney Arundel. Addresses were not available for Buckner and Arundel.

PUBLIC PRESENT
Magistrate William Ostler said: "There is evidence of yelling and shouting but where's the evidence of a public disturbance?"

NOT RUNNING
He denied the engine was running when Sgt. Frank Briers, of the Saanich police, approached him.

He said in evidence that he had turned the engine off and placed the keys under the front seat, contradicting police evidence.

IMPAIRED
Saanich also charged him with impaired driving and he was sentenced to a further seven days. He was prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for three years.

Morino changed an earlier plea and pleaded guilty to all charges.

FINE NO GOOD
Morino was driving north on Washington when he hit a parked car at Burnside. He abandoned the car and later denied knowledge of the incident.

Morino told Magistrate Ostler he was returning from his engagement party and that he was to be married shortly.

Magistrate Ostler replied: "It is quite apparent that a fine would be completely inadequate for such conduct."

FACES JAIL
He said that, as he understood Const. Mullin's evidence, the public gathered only after the arrival of the police cars.

He then dismissed the charges. However, Morino was taken away to begin a jail sentence which followed an earlier hearing.

THREE RAPS
Morino was sentenced to seven days for driving while impaired, seven days for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and three months for driving while disqualified.

These three charges were laid by the Victoria police following incidents on Tuesday at 2:23 a.m.

PASSENGER
RCMP Constable John McDiarmid said Reimer, of 5635 Old West Saanich Road, was a passenger in a car stopped on Trans-Canada Highway on Aug. 14 at 8:25 p.m.

An open case of beer was found on the ground by the car and two opened bottles of beer in a box of corn on the back seat where Reimer was sitting with another person.

CUT OVER EYE
Police doctor Dr. E. L. Mc-Niven and the Fullaway's family doctor, Dr. John Le Huquet, disagreed on the age of the bruises but agreed there was extensive bruising on the boy's arms, back, buttock and thighs.

There was also a cut over his right eye.

INFECTION
In cross-examination, Dr. Le Huquet said an infection the boy had had in his left leg would

Workshop Saturday
J. K. Meredith, director of curriculum for the department of education, will address a Saturday workshop of the Greater Victoria Catholic Teachers' Association.

The conference, being held in St. Ann's Academy, 835 Humboldt, will also hear speakers on the new method of teaching mathematics and the new language arts program.

Fire Kills Prisoners
NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—Two U.S. Army prisoners were asphyxiated when a fire broke out in the brig of the troopship Gen. W. H. Gordon, informed sources reported.

The sources said guards attempted to rescue the two soldiers but were unable to save them. Military officials were reluctant to comment on the incident.

CUMBERLAND — The local hospital was well represented at the recent conference of hospital trustees and administrators in Vancouver.

Board chairman George Apps was accompanied by Trustees Jack Edwards, Peter S. Cameron, Charles J. Parnham, and Henry Waterfield.

C. A. Cousins, administrator for Cumberland Hospital, attended the special session for administrators.

Also in Vancouver was the hospital women's auxiliary president Mrs. Dorothy Edwards. She attended a three-day conference of the provincial hospital auxiliaries.

Realism Absent

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — National Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday there has been lack of leadership and realistic policies in Ottawa.

Speaking to 100 persons at a campaign luncheon Mr. Thompson said many people are looking to Social Credit to "restore the principles of government."

He said Social Credit had been in power for 30 years in Alberta and 13 in British Columbia. He asked: "Give us a chance to do the same thing in Ottawa."

Mr. Thompson said Social Credit would do well in British Columbia and Alberta and has good chances in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario in the Nov. 8 federal election.

A recent survey showed between 40 and 45 per cent of Canadian voters had not made up their minds on how to vote.

East-West

Jesuits Combine Culture

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Superior General of the Jesuits said Wednesday the Roman Catholic Church should "pick the best" from the cultures of the east and the west to build a universal culture for all men.

Father Pedro Arrupe, a Basque priest who has spent many years in eastern countries, told a news conference missionaries must overcome a western "superiority complex" and adapt to local cultures in preaching the gospel.

"We must not make a man first a westerner and then a Christian, but directly a Christian," Father Arrupe said in a conference that came during the Ecumenical Council's one week recess.

Father Arrupe, a liberal who was chosen earlier this year to head the Society of Jesus, also emphasized he felt a speech on atheism he made to the council on Sept. 27 had been widely misunderstood to mean there was a worldwide atheistic conspiracy in such fields as international organizations, finance and the press.

Father Arrupe, who was in Hiroshima when the atom bomb was dropped there in 1945 and later headed the Jesuit province of Japan, cited his own experiences in urging missionaries to accept the good in eastern culture.

NEW APPROACH

"There is a superiority complex in the west," he said. "But if you visit such countries as China, Japan or India — not for two or three weeks as tourists staying in a western-style hotel, but living with the people, suffering and rejoicing with them — you find they have values which we lack. In Japan, I was struck by the people's self-control, kindness and identification with nature."

He said where the church may play an essential role in building culture in backward countries, an entirely different approach is needed in dealing with highly cultured nations of the east.

Tax Appeal

No Laxity For Doyle —Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson said in a statement Wednesday there has been no laxity in dealing with the tax position of mining promoter John C. Doyle.

Mr. Benson said he could not under the law reveal any details about Mr. Doyle's tax position, and that it now was before the tax appeal board.

The revenue minister said in the statement issued through his office that he will not become involved in any public argument about any individual income tax case, including Mr. Doyle's.

REPLIED

The statement was issued in reply to comments by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who asked Mr. Benson to make public the amount of out-of-court settlement reached with Canadian Javelin Ltd., of which Mr. Doyle was president.

ASSESSMENTS

"As Mr. Diefenbaker well knows, I would be breaking the law if I was to reveal anything concerning Mr. Doyle's tax position," Mr. Benson said.

"He must also know that the matter at issue involves assessments of Mr. Doyle's which go back over a number of years."

NOT PROPER

"It would not be proper for me to discuss how this matter has been handled under the previous government any more than under the present government; but I can say the matter now is before the tax appeal board and that under this government there has been no laxity in dealing with it."

U.S. Citizens Join Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5,700,000 elderly Americans have signed up for voluntary Medicare insurance, the social security administration says. The voluntary plan supplements the basic Medicare program which pays hospital bills for those 65 and older. Both go into effect next July 1. The voluntary plan covers doctor bills, and costs $3 a month.

Youth Workers

'Spell Out Aims'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Welfare Council said Wednesday the aims and methods of the Company of Young Canadians must be spelled out clearly before the new federal agency goes to work.

In a memo to the CYC organizing committee, the council said Prime Minister Pearson's description of the CYC is "very wide" and should be clarified at a national conference.

The memo said the company should concentrate on long-term community projects to help underprivileged youth. Volunteer "grass roots" workers should be recruited from the underprivileged class as well as from the "elite" of middle-class university students.

MORE EFFECTIVE

"Elite" volunteers in the U.S. Peace Corps and VISTA, its domestic counterpart, often suffered a "painful shock" when they came into contact with the completely different way of life and attitudes of the poor.

The council said underprivileged volunteers trained by professional social workers may be accepted better by the poor and prove more effective in helping them.

NEW APPROACHES

The company should stay away from individual case work and develop imaginative new approaches of assisting communities to break out of the poverty vicious circle.

The greatest challenge for the company would be to "reach" underprivileged youth in city slums, depressed rural towns and Indian reserves.

The council recommended that the company work closely with the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration (ARDA), the Indian Affairs branch and community social organizations such as the YMCA.

Douglas Says

Neutrals Wooed By NDP

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The New Democratic Party would have to capture 75 per cent of the uncommitted vote in the Nov. 8 federal election to give it a chance to form a government, National Leader T. C. Douglas said Wednesday.

He told a press conference: "Where these votes go will make all the difference. If we get 75 per cent, together with the support we've received in the past, we could form a government."

POWERFUL FORCE

He said the undecided were made up largely of disillusioned and disenchanted Conservatives.

Mr. Douglas, greeted by about 500 supporters, said the NDP is no longer considered a splinter party but "recognized as a powerful force." He answered a reporter who had asked how long it would take the NDP to become a major political force in Canada.

'LEGITIMATE'

Mr. Douglas said recent scandals involving the Liberal party are "legitimate subjects for discussion during the campaign."

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Pearson's proposal to provide additional assistance to elderly persons was not new. "He's offering something we already have in many provinces. In fact, we had it when I was still premier in Saskatchewan."

CPR Crews

Honor Pickets

MOOSE JAW (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Railway official says CPR workers are being penalized for refusing to cross a picket line at the strike-bound British American Oil Co. refinery here.

A. F. Fryers, CPR superintendent here, said railway supervisory personnel have had to take over yard engines to move tank cars in and out of the refinery. The CPR are giving "demerit points" to men refusing to cross the line.

UNIFORM HAS HISTORY

The frilly white kilt of the Greek royal guardman is supposed to have developed from the tunic worn under Greek or Roman armor.

WHAT'S THIS? WHERE HAS OUR COFFEE MAKER GONE? AUTOMATION HAS BEEN ADDED!

AND YOU HAVE TO PUT IN A DIME?

WHOSE IDEA WAS THIS?

CAN YOU CHANGE A QUARTER?

ASK THE PRINCIPAL!

I KEEP GETTING AN ASSOCIATION THERE, CITY... RUSSYON!

I MUST LEARN MORE ABOUT THIS COP!

HIS PERMIT IS IN ORDER, SGT. DRAKE! BUT...

YOU DOUBT THAT I HAVE COMPLETE VISION? I HOLD OUT YOUR BADGE WALLEY, YOUNG MAN!

BADGE 988... AND YOUR IDENT CARD READS: JOHN COLE DETECTIVE SECOND GRADE! IS THAT PROOF ENOUGH?

YOU HAVEN'T SEEN ANYTHING, OFFICER... HERE, BE MY GUEST TO-NIGHT AT THE 'CLUB SAVANNAH'... AND I'LL REALLY MYSTIFY YOU!

ANYBODY HOME?

THIS STUFF SELLS ITSELF WHEN YOU GET A CHANCE TO DISPLAY IT PROPERLY LIKE THIS!

OKAY, BUD... I'M READY FOR YOU!

RUNNIN' AWAY FROM HOME WITH SO MANY BEANS FOLLOWING IS TOO MUCH TROUBLE... I'M SHAKIN' BACK WHILST THEY'RE STILL TALKIN' THEIR SLEDGE...

COULDN'T I JUST HONESTLY ADMIT TO A FAKE AND SLEEP HERE?

NOT ME... TA DOGGED SON-ON-ANYTHING TO GET AWAY FROM SHAKIN' AND ALL SHEA OTHER CELEBRANTS OF THE REFUGEE...

BUT WE BEEN CRAWLIN' HOME HIGH ON FORTY YOUR MAN AND BOY!

NOT SOON ENOUGH, POPS... I BEEN WAITIN' ON MY BREAKFAST LIKE... THAT TIME... WHATS WITH THE SHACKLES, JIMMY? I MEANT...

IT'S SOMETHING YOU SHOULD DO MORE OFTEN, BERT!

IT FEELS GOOD TO BE AT THE DARS AGAIN!

I'VE OFTEN WANTED TO BRING MY SON UP HERE... BUT VIVIAN WOULDN'T LET ME! SHE'S ALWAYS AFRAID SOMETHING MIGHT HAPPEN!

SHE MUST BE AN UNHAPPY PERSON... ALWAYS LIVING IN FEAR...

VIVIAN WASN'T THAT WAY WHEN WE WERE MARRIED... SHE SMILED ALOT AND WAS BELIEVING GAY! WE HAD A LOT OF FUN TOGETHER! IT WAS AFTER TERRY WAS BORN THAT SHE CHANGED...

AS I LOOK BACK, I CAN'T BELIEVE SHE'S THE SAME GIRL!

SHIP 'EM TO LIBERACE!!

HERE'S YORE DOZEN 'AL CAPS KIGMIES!!

CHUCKLE! THEY'RE FUN TO KICK!!

IS THERE ANY CHANCE THAT I COULD SEE THE JUDGE FOR MORRIS? HE'S DUE IN COURT IN ABOUT FIFTEEN MINUTES!

I THINK SO, MRS. MORRIS! HE'S DUE IN COURT IN ABOUT FIFTEEN MINUTES!

I APOLOGIZE FOR BREAKING IN ON YOU THIS WAY, JUDGE!

IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU, SUE!

GLENN AND I HAD AN ARGUMENT! HE LEFT THE HOUSE ABOUT TWO THIS MORNING, HIS BAGS PACKED!

I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT THE JOB HE GOT... BUT I'M AFRAID HE'S HEADPEP FOR TROUBLE!

WHY WASN'T THE CHAMBERLAIN EXECUTED FOR MURDER, SIR?

WE COULDN'T PROVE IT, DESMOND. HE ONLY DREW A JAIL TERM FOR EXTORTION...

HE LOOKED SO PITIFUL THAT THE JUDGE DIDN'T SEND HIM AWAY FOR A LONG ENOUGH TERM.

AND HE VOWED TO GET ME AS SOON AS HE WAS RELEASED!

Garden Notes

Cheap at the Price

By M. V. CHESNUT

With the possible exception of the Madonna Lily, the hyacinth must be just about the most ancient of all our bulb flowers. Homer mentions the hair of Ulysses as "light curling as a hyacinth flower curls tight," while the disciplined Spartans kicked up their heels and let off steam during their annual Festival of Hyacinthia, honoring this lovely and sweetly fragrant flower.

While everybody loves hyacinths, there seems to be a general feeling that the bulbs are too expensive for massed plantings outdoors, and this impression is borne out by first glances at the price tags. The clear blue Oatara, for instance, will set you back 40c per bulb, the double white Madame Sophie 45c, the new multiflora kinds 80c each and the enormous double pink Mme. Haubenak is priced at a whopping $1 per bulb.

The thing to remember, though, is that these prices are for top size bulbs of exhibition quality, grand for indoor culture in pots and bowls, but such superb specimens are quite unnecessary for bedding or massed display outdoors. Second-size bulbs of older and cheaper varieties will serve just as well for this purpose and are very much cheaper.

Good named varieties can be purchased in the No. 2 size for about $3 per dozen, or if you buy an unnamed mixture, they can be had for as little as $15 per hundred, and when you consider how much mileage you get out of a hyacinth bulb, these prices make their massed outdoor use quite a practicable proposition. It is true that the bulbs and the flower spikes will be smaller than the expensive top grades, but in a massed planting you look for the overall effect rather than the perfection of the individual flower. The fragrance will be just as sweet, and you can count on all your second-grade bulbs blooming, with no blank spots in the bed.

Hyacinths like a rich soil. You can forget all that nonsense about never using manure in a bulb bed, for it really does pay to dig in plenty of old rotted stuff—the spent manure from old mushroom or hothouse cucumber beds is ideal. Chemical fertilizers don't seem to work well with these bulbs, although a little superphosphate scratched into the soil surface makes for a more vigorous rooting system, say, about half a cupful per square yard.

Stifle the temptation to plant hyacinths with a footrule in geometric patterns, and treat them as plants rather than soldiers to be lined up on parade. A good plan is to group them here and there in the garden, with anywhere from 5 to a dozen bulbs in each grouping, ideally all one color in each group. Average spacing is about six inches between bulbs, but don't be too strict in this; a little variation is pleasing to the eye in irregularly-shaped clumps of bloom.

While there is some advantage in planting daffs, crocuses and snowdrops fairly early in the fall, the last week in October is time enough for hyacinths, and even the middle of November isn't too late. There is no particular trick in the planting—just take out a hole about six inches deep and drop in a bulb. I have an idea there is some slight advantage in making the hole about an inch deeper and dumping a handful of vermiculite in the bottom for the bulb to sit on, but this is a refinement by no means essential.

In the spring, after the flowers are finished, the plants need a further 60 days of growth in the soil to plump up the bulbs for next year's blooms. This can be a bit of a nuisance, for the dying foliage in its later stages is unsightly; and we are usually anxious about this time to get the bed cleared and planted up with summer-flowering annuals.

The trick here is to dig up the plants carefully, taking a good ball of soil around the roots, and transplant them in full growth to a spare row in the vegetable plot where they can complete their life cycle at their leisure. After the foliage has died down completely, the bulbs are taken up, dried off and stored in the basement until planting time in the fall.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Airs Prejudices

Fairly Personal Prejudices:

When we send home boys from school because they wear their hair long, or bar college students from wearing beards, what are we afraid of? Why does a country which incessantly preaches "individualism" in its economic life refuse to tolerate the mildest eccentricity in its social life?

World affairs are harder to run today, and seem more confused and chaotic, because until recent times leaders didn't have to consider public opinion; 98 per cent of the world's population didn't know what was going on, and didn't care; it is the new element of world opinion that has drastically altered the manipulation of public affairs. Most of the best academic minds are working on the problem of improving education at the primary and secondary level; with the resulting paradox that the quality of education at the university level is standing still or actually regressing.

Speaking of education, what a child "learns" at home is infinitely more important and lasting than what he learns at school — yet we expect the schools to rectify much of the damage done by home mis-training.

Next time you use the phrase "forlorn hope," look it up and discover that its origin has nothing to do with either "forlorn" or "hope."

Practically no reputable historian believes in what the layman thinks of as "progress"; indeed, the whole idea of progress is only a few hundred years old, and was totally unknown to civilization before the 17th century.

It is easy to understand the perturbation of conservatives in the Curia about the contraception issue — for they understand the psychological truth that once such a question is open for discussion, the sanction against it loses force, no matter what the final decision is; as soon as the public is aware of a profound difference of ecclesiastical opinion, the prohibition has lost most of its effect.

Stanley Kramer is talking to Michael Parks—Adam of the Bible, and now in The Idol—about a starring role in Andersonville, with Oscar Werner. It's interesting that Oscar was in Hollywood in 1952 for Decision at Dawn in which he gave an even better performance than he does in the current Ship of Fools. After that, he waited in Hollywood for another good role. Nothing happened, and he swore never to return.

But they always come back. The same thing happened with Julie Andrews, and Charles Boyer who returned to France after playing a bit part as a chauffeur in an early talkie—with Joan Crawford or Jean Harlow (at this distance I am not quite sure).

The Sad Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Old Pro Carries On

PARIS (NANA)—"I don't expect anyone to believe me but it was a tragic accident." This from Charles Boyer, speaking about the recent tragic death of his son, Michael. According to Charles, who—like the pro he is—flew back to Paris to complete his role in How to Steal a Million Dollars and Live Happily Ever After, there was no serious romance in Michael's life to instill in him the wish to die. It was not suicide, Charles is convinced. It was an accident. It was heart-breaking for this reporter, who remembers when Michael was born, and the pride with which his father has discussed him over the years, to listen to Charles speak the comedy lines in the film with Audrey Hepburn and Peter O'Toole, in which he plays the honest art dealer in a company of crooks who fake artistic masterpieces.

With stars dashing around so much in this jet age, Charlton Heston relays from Cairo, where he is playing General Gordon in Khartoum, that he hopes to get a three-week break between the locationing in Egypt, and before they start up with Sir Laurence Olivier in London, and he will go home to Hollywood to be with his family. And has it been printed that Sir Ralph Richardson is Gladstone in this film?

James Mason was ready to go to bat when daughter Porty was about to be booted out of her picture in London on the grounds that she was an American citizen. She flew to daddy in Dublin, who reminded her that she had dual citizenship, British as well as American. End of being booted out. James is doubly happy—at having his daughter so close, and at working in Ireland for the first time in two decades. Not so incidentally, Porty has blossomed into a real beauty. If she can act as well, she's in.

Ace Hollywood agent Paul Kohner is handling Jean Danelly's Stonegate Production movie company here. Jean is Philadelphia's gift to London. She is blonde, athletic, rich and has a gorgeous apartment in Grosvenor Square in which the literary, artistic and social worlds are always mingling. She has two films on tap, Vortex, not to be confused with Noel Coward's early play, The Vortex, and The Assassins of Beirut, which will be made in that city. They have now reached the budget and casting areas for both.

Stanley Kramer is talking to Michael Parks—Adam of the Bible, and now in The Idol—about a starring role in Andersonville, with Oscar Werner. Instant Salvation

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Some people imagine that religion can be used — like any other item of consumer goods. All you need do is reach for it. Instant salvation, they believe it.

But when we use religion, instead of allowing it to use us, we always end up abusing it. Some people "use" religion as a prop to shore up sagging nervous systems. They rely upon it for the security and strength they refuse to achieve on their own. They would like to see life as neat and easy—a sweet and simple affair.

So, they reach for "the Man upstairs," as they would say, reduce Him to their size, and carry Him in their vest pocket—on the left side, nearest the heart, of course!

Others turn to religion as a respectable means of hallowing their hates—not their love. Because of unhappy temperament, some thrive only in vindictive isolation—fenced off from their neighbors. They need wide barriers and high walls to be happy—because, inside they are so unhappy.

They flee from the world because they are afraid of it. They cannot abide its open societies, its changing patterns, or the possibility of being persuaded by its convincing opinions.

This kind of religion is "useful" because it is safe—safe from the challenge of involvement in the lives and needs of others. But it can only be "used" by "us"—never by "them"—and so, it is really an abuse of religion.

Still others, the dependent and emotionally-immature ones, imagine that they can quickly don a cloak of piety, grab the horns of the altar, and easily acquire foolproof protection from anxiety and trouble. They're looking for short-cuts to circumvent the tough and thorny issues of life.

Unfortunately, from what they have heard about religion from some of its over-eager "salesmen," it appeals to their cowardly feelings, not to their courage. Result: This misuse of religion makes weak people, weaker still.

All three groups are practicing "neurotic religion." All three are involved in a flight from life and reality. They need to be reminded.

to its heights in hearts that are disconnected from other hearts.

We need to be attached to, not separated from our fellow men.

● Mature religion cannot appeal to our timidities and our cowardice. It must be linked to our potential for courage.

Those who "use" religion never get off the ground. They are too busy sitting on their hands.

This, the psalmist knew. In a single, simple, penetrating picture, he asks God: "Lead me to a rock that is too high for me!" He wants to stand on his tiptoes. He wants to stretch; to strain his spiritual muscles. And this is what the poet taught, as well: "A man's reach must exceed his grasp or what's a Heaven for?"

Those who "use" religion never get off the ground. They are too busy sitting on their hands.

Assassin Prince Sues TV Network

Mad Monk Shot to Cohan Tune

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian Prince Felix Youssouppoff told an American jury Wednesday how he played the "Mad Monk" Rasputin with poison food and bullets in a basement room of the Youssouppoff Palace while a gramophone upstairs played I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy. The standing-room-only crowd in the state supreme court chamber strained forward as the almost legendary assassin, now 79, told how hard it was to kill the hulking, filthy peasant who had gained the confidence of Czarina and her weak-willed husband, Czar Nicholas II. Youssouppoff, who was the czar's nephew by marriage, admitted he did not murder Ras-

putin to save the Imperial Court from his evil influence but because he loathed the false monk's sexual debaucheries. He said he asked Rasputin to leave the imperial capital, St. Petersburg. Continued on Page 2

Rhodesia Effort

Wilson May Fly to Smith

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Wilson may offer personally to fly to Salisbury in a late-hour effort aimed at heading off Rhodesia's threat to declare its independence from Britain. Three London newspapers said the offer may be contained in Wilson's latest reply to the White House. But sources at No. 10 Downing Street gave no confirmation. Wilson worked until the early morning hours on his reply to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith after he conferred about the crisis with Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

11th Hour Note Sent to U.K.

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesia's cabinet has sent an ultimatum to Britain to grant the white-ruled central African colony immediate freedom or face a unilateral declaration of independence.

'Use Force To Save Rhodesia'

EDINBURGH (AP) — The 22-year-old daughter of Garfield Todd, former Rhodesian prime minister, urged Britain Wednesday to suspend that African colony's constitution, using force if necessary.

Judy Todd flew from New York, where she is a Columbia University student, to a teaching post in Rhodesia at the University of Edinburgh after her father was placed under house arrest Monday by the Rhodesian government.

On her arrival in Britain, Miss Todd said she would express the views of her father, a champion of African rights, "as far as I know his thinking." He had planned to participate in the teach-in.

Miss Todd said she is not influenced by arguments that white settlers should be given more time to educate the African majority, establish democracy and justice.

Canadians for Viet Nam?

Produce Johnson Note John D Hurls Challenge

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

RENFREW, Ont.—The hustings caught fire last night as Conservative leader John Diefenbaker challenged Prime Minister Pearson to produce at once the "Canadian-troops-for-Viet Nam" letter sent by President Johnson.

At the same time, he charged there was "some reason behind" the confusion, disorganization and deception surrounding the contents of the letter.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew into a rage at a rally in the Legion Hall here, after the Prime Minister and three key ministers had disagreed over the letter.

He was stunned that Defence Minister Paul Hellyer—"Little Boy Blue," he called him—had not even seen the letter from the U.S. president.

JOHNSON DEMAND

The letter and the government's handling of it are now a major election issue, following claims by Creditistes and others that the government will commit troops to Viet Nam.

Talking to an afternoon crowd of 300, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Prime Minister had said that President Johnson, in his mid-summer letter, wanted Canadian troops for Viet Nam.

"And, naturally, when the Prime Minister says things, you believe them."

ORDINARY LETTER

But External Affairs Minister Marlin—"his second in command"—did not know that the Prime Minister had said that. He said the President did not ask for troops.

"When you get the Prime Minister and his senior minister unable to read an ordinary letter, there must be some reason behind it."

"They are both educated men, they both read English. Yet one came to one opinion and one came to the other."

WANTS EXCERPTS

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that he had asked for the letter so he could find out what the Prime Minister and Mr. Marlin were talking about.

"After all, who would be sent over there if troops were asked for?"

The Prime Minister, he said, had agreed to this, or at least to produce excerpts to show the situation.

"He wanted," he said, but no excerpts were produced and the blame was given President Johnson. Continued on Page 2

Sheriff's Just Waitin'

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP)—A man shot twice in his home managed to reach the telephone and tell a woman neighbor the name of the person who shot him. Then he collapsed and died.

The neighbor called police.

"And then," said Sheriff Wayne Koepke Wednesday "the neighbor couldn't remember the name of the killer. She's still trying."

The victim was Charles Jeffries, 59, described in his home town of Monterey near here as "a well-liked handy man with no enemies." He was reputed to have carried considerable sums of money.

Jeffries was shot twice in the back Tuesday night.

Kootenays See Pickets

GRAND FORKS (CP) — The nationwide oil refinery strike spread Wednesday to the Kootenay-bound country when picketers descended on Grand Forks.

Picketing refinery workers said that pickets will be seen in virtually every municipality in the Kootenays within the next few days.

Beer Strike Is Over

VOTE UNCAPS FOAM FLOW

By GORDON DODD
Beer, glorious beer — at last!

After almost nine parched weeks, the big bottle and draft drought is at an end and British Columbians will be able to toast the occasion with the hitherto strikebound nectar by Saturday.

Return to work for 450 workers at four mainland breweries and the Lucky Lager plant here begins midnight tonight, after their vote Wednesday night to accept the compromise settlement hammered out in resumed talks between the two sides.

Prior to last week's resumption in negotiations, there had been eight weeks of silence, not to mention frustration for the province's beer drinkers and hotels.

MAJOR CONCESSION

The agreement will give workers a 24.7 cents an increase over three years, an extra week's vacation for senior employees.

But job protection clauses are considered the major concession to workers. The agreement covers guaranteed wages, manpower, termination pay, job training and retraining, and accident and sickness benefits.

NORMAL DELIVERIES

Victoria workers voted 53-3 to accept the agreement at their Union Centre meeting.

Later, Lucky Lager brewmaster W. Spersholt said he could promise normal draft and bottled beer deliveries to outlets Saturday.

Several licensed premises in the Greater Victoria area receive their draft supply from the mainland, however.

LIVERY SELF

Mr. Spersholt added estimates that 8,000 gallons had been languishing in the vats during the strike were conservative, but denied first customers would be getting a brew of special vintage quality.

The beer will just be its livery self.

The strike began August 23 after lengthy talks between employers and the International Union of United Breweries, Cereal, Flour, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America broke down.

Beer supplies dwindled rapidly.

RAN DRY

Within a week or two almost every beer parlor in the Vancouver and Victoria areas and many in other towns and cities had to close because there was no draft beer.

Government liquor stores also ran dry, except for beer supplied by two small interior breweries and limited imported brands.

Several thousand beer parlor waiters were thrown out of work by the strike, which also shut down beer distribution services.

Algerian Quiz On Summit Talk

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Algeria was requested to sound out all the Afro-Asian nations on whether they wish their summit conference to go on here as planned Nov. 5.

Mr. Mars said in a statement the malted milk could cause illness to anyone who consumed it.

"The regular processing procedure was interrupted at the company's plant and a limited amount of the product, resulting from the irregular processing procedure, was packaged," Mr. Mars said.

Four Children Victims

Carload of Eight Killed in Plunge

RADIUM JUNCTION, B.C. (CP)—Eight Indians, including four tiny children, died Wednesday when their car plunged off a forestry bridge into the Columbia River in southeastern British Columbia.

The accident was spotted by a logging company employee driving along the forestry road.

The car settled in about 10 feet of water. Eight bodies were in the vehicle when it was recovered. All the doors and windows were closed.

Police identified three of the dead as Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stanley of the Columbia reserve near Windermere, B.C., and Josephine Pascal of the Shuswap reserve near Invermere, all within 20 miles of the accident scene in the Rocky Mountains.

The four children killed were Maria, 5, Marlene, 4, Elizabeth, 1, and Leonard, five months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley.

B.C.M.P. have not yet released the name of the other adult killed.

Prince George Today

Premier Hits Campaign Trail

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett flies to Prince George today to open a whirlwind, two-week election campaign for Social Credit's 22 B.C. candidates in the Nov. 8 federal election.

He left Victoria Wednesday afternoon with his executive assistant William Budd and driver Art Vickers, planning to stay overnight at the Hotel Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett was to fly this morning to Prince George where he will deliver his opening speech in the civic centre at 8 p.m., in support of incumbent Social Credit candidate Bert Leboe.

He is scheduled to fly back to Vancouver Friday, where a major press conference will be held in the Hotel Vancouver at 7 p.m.

HEAVY FIRE

The premier's office gave no indication Wednesday of what can be expected as the Social Credit campaign unfolds, but several cabinet ministers have already brought heavy fire on the province's Liberal candidates.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday that so far as Vancouver Island is concerned, an effort is being made to get a four-member bloc of Social Credit members in the House, who will fight for a fair deal for B.C.

Mr. Campbell spoke in Nanaimo Wednesday night in support of Social Credit candidate Lyle Wilkinson who is seeking the seat for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and will speak in Port Alberni on Nov. 4, on behalf of Jean Gagnon who is contesting the Comox-Alberni seat.

Vancouver Island's other two Social Credit candidates are Frank Hunter in Victoria and Mrs. Vera Pipes in Esquimalt-Saanich.

THREE PLANKS

The Up-Island Socials have three basic planks in their platform, said Mr. Campbell:

● The Trans-Canada Highway should be extended from Nanaimo to Port Hardy (it now runs from Nanaimo to Victoria).

● Ferry links to Vancouver Island from the Mainland should become part of the Trans-Canada Highway system and the Prince Rupert run should be considered as an international throughway linking the U.S. with Alaska.

● Offshore drilling for petroleum should come under provincial government jurisdiction because "a good deal of it will be adjacent to the Comox-Alberni constituency."

B.C.'s Socials had only two seats in the last Parliament, those held by incumbents Leboe in the Prince George stronghold and A. B. Patterson representing the Fraser Valley.

Malted Milk Batch Sought

Dairy Firm Warns Public

TORONTO (CP)—The Borden Co. Ltd. is attempting to recover 468 14-ounce jars of plain malted milk powder processed incorrectly. Vice-President Mills Mars said Wednesday.

Mr. Mars said in a statement the malted milk could cause illness to anyone who consumed it.

"The regular processing procedure was interrupted at the company's plant and a limited amount of the product, resulting from the irregular processing procedure, was packaged," Mr. Mars said.

The company traced the suspected product to Vancouver, Edmonton, Kitchener, Windsor and Rexdale, Ont., and Montreal.

Although many jars already have been recovered, company officials are concerned about jars that may be in homes and have asked householders to look on the side of the label for the perforated code numbers 15147 and 15148. Jars with those numbers should be returned to the store.

"No other batch numbers or flavors are involved," Mr. Mars said.

Mad Monk Shot to Cohan Tune

burg (later Leningrad) but the vily mystic refused.

"He told me he was a German agent and for that he had to stay," said Yousouppoff whose country was losing the war to Germany and crumbling from within.

Yousouppoff then told of the crime for which he was never prosecuted—a gory tale that shocked the First World War generation, resulting in a best-selling book by the Prince and later became the subject of movie and television dramas.

The Prince said he persuaded Rasputin to come to the family's home.

Came to Make Movie

Lone Woman Innkeeper Likes Jungle Outpost

LETICIA, Colombia (AP) — Marcy Elden agrees that it takes some kind of a nut to want to run a hotel on the upper Amazon.

Mrs. Elden is proprietor of the 12-room Hotel Victoria Regia in this jungle outpost.

She is perhaps the only woman innkeeper along the muddy 1,300-mile stretch of the Amazon between Iquitos, Peru, and Manaus, Brazil, and surely the most attractive.

"I feel like the western pioneers must have 75 years ago," she says. "This country is virtually untouched except that here we have the airplane instead of the covered wagon."

The petite brunette from Laguna Beach, Calif., came up the Amazon two years ago with a crew shooting a documentary film, liked what she saw and stayed.

What she saw was the Victoria Regia, built by the Colombian government several decades ago. It was named for a jungle water lily which reaches the size of manhole covers, and it was falling apart.

Wild animals roamed through the rooms, cobwebs barred the doors, and what few guests there were strung hammocks outside on the long veranda.

OBTAINS CONTRACT

Mrs. Elden got a five-year management contract from the government and promptly got her first taste of tropical hotel headaches.

Although the Amazon flows at her doorstep, fresh water is rationed. Electricity, provided by a Colombian gunboat, is available only during evening hours.

Out went the uninvited animals and cobwebs, and in came beds, a dining room and kitchen, and a pleasant bar where today the upper Amazon's elite meet in a rustic atmosphere at the jungle's edge.

Wild animals still grace the Victoria Regia, but only those invited by the management.

Parrots, monkeys and a giant rhinoceros beetle have lodged at the Victoria Regia. Among more recent guests have been two ocelot kittens, miniature tigers which alternately him and purr their affection.

In frequent airline service provides the hotel with most of its guests. Occasional river steamers bring a few others—scientists studying such things as orchids and jungle spiders, adventurers and Brazilian and Peruvian salesmen.

Your Good Health

Dropped Uterus Surgery Not Serious Operation

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a dropped uterus and should undergo surgery. If one has heart trouble is it wise to have the operation?—MRS. G. S.

For this, or any number of other operations, the answer depends on the seriousness of the heart trouble. And what kind is involved.

Do you have occasional palpitation, or is there some cardiac (heart) insufficiency? Is this a problem of a leaky valve, or have you had a serious heart attack?

WEAKENED

In short, without knowing all about your heart, as well as your general health, I can't possibly answer your question. I can name any number of people who have had heart attacks, yet have had subsequent operations. I know others who never have had a coronary occlusion (heart attack), yet their hearts have been weakened in other ways and they should not have an operation unless the urgency of the surgery is such that the risk must be taken.

If your doctor thinks you should have the operation, have it, and let him judge your condition. Correcting a dropped uterus doesn't involve a very serious operation. Reading between the lines, I judge that your doctor knows the surgery will help you and that your heart trouble is not going to be involved.

Dear Dr. Molner: In 1961 a doctor gave me tranquillisers. I have a good many left in a tightly-capped dark bottle. My present doctor has given me the same medication. Would it be safe to use the first bottle?—M.C.

These capsules keep very well, so I see no reason why you shouldn't use them.

Dear Dr. Molner: If mumps "went down" on a seven-year-old girl, will she be able to have children when she grows up?—N. L.

The answer depends on whether the disease affected both ovaries or only one. If one was damaged, she could still have babies.

Dear Dr. Molner: About two years ago I had a hysterectomy. Recently I took up bowling and a friend said this was the worst thing to do as it would cause adhesions. Is this true?—MRS. B.C.

No, quite the contrary. Adhesions, if they are going to form, start shortly after the surgery. Exercise does not cause adhesions. In fact, early exercise may help minimize formation. Your friend was misinformed.

NOTE TO G. O. C.: Rectal itching often affects the cause is hemorrhoids or some other such condition, can be ended by keeping the area clean and dry. Wash with plain water, dry, then place a pledget of absorbent cotton there to absorb further moisture.

"They said he didn't want the information out. If he didn't want it, why did they let part of it out in the first place?"

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had been defending the government in the uproar over the letter. When people had asked him if there was anything to the story, he had replied "They can't be so."

But now Finance Minister Gordon says that President Johnson's letter asked for troops. Defence Minister Hellyer says it didn't, though he didn't see it. "What kind of thing is this? What heights of ridiculous nonsense and disorganization does this reveal?"

"This letter," he continued, "affects Canadians as a whole in a situation that is the most serious for world peace."

"It is a matter of international urgency to know what happened."

"This government," he roared, "does not have the right to keep people in the dark like this!"

"No matter what the Prime Minister says, that letter must be produced because, if it isn't, Canadians will be able to form their own opinions as to what actually happened."

Mr. Diefenbaker said this situation shows the utter disorganization in the government—"gross confusion and, worse, confusion amounting to deception."

International correspondence of such importance should not be hidden from Canadians, he said.

"Let's have an answer," Mr. Diefenbaker demanded. "I say this to the Prime Minister."

"I know I won't get one. He will say he answered it before. He never answered it and I challenge him to produce that letter."

If it was produced, he predicted, it would show the confusion in the government and the "loss of sense of international responsibility."

No amount of "glossing over" could get over the facts, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He accused the government of "bumbling ineptitude."

Restrooms Set For Centennial

COURTENAY — Cumberland village council has approved its Centennial project.

The project will see construction of a cement building valued at approximately $9,000 to house men's and ladies' restrooms. Two tenders were received for renovations to council chamber by the successful bidder being Lou Galik. The renovation work is the second part of a plan put into operation last year when extensive work was done to the front and interior of the municipal hall. Also added at that time was a walk-in vault. Council chambers are used as a meeting place for other local groups at times as well as for council meetings.

Site Chosen For Workshop

DUNCAN — The sheltered workshop for retarded adults hoped for in this area took a stride forward with the decision to locate this workshop at the corner of Trunk Road and Trans-Canada Highway. The standard service station on the northeast corner will be subleased from Nov. 1.

Here sorting tables, desks and benches will be set up and workshop director Mrs. Leslie Punnett hopes to open for business with three or four trainees by mid November.

Threat to Witness Brings Prison Term

ALBERNI — Raymond Arsenault, who earlier this week was fined $200 or six months in jail for leaving the scene of an accident, and $30 for driving without due care and attention, has received a six-month sentence for assault with an offensive weapon.

Arsenault was the driver of a car which last Thursday crashed into a power pole after sideswiping another car. Arsenault then ran away from the scene, abandoning the car and its badly injured occupant, Gerald Fred.

According to testimony, he later threatened Gerald Fred's wife with a knife, ordering her not to tell police who had been driving at the time of the accident.

NANAIMO — Gordon Pike, 1898 Ewen Road, has been charged with assault causing bodily harm.

He was released on $1,000 bail on his own recognizance.

Pike is a scientist at the federal biological station at Departure Bay, and an internationally-known expert on whales.

NANAIMO — A new approach to logging was given an official sendoff here Wednesday when Education Minister Leslie Peterson opened the logging school at the vocational school.

The students take a six-week course at the school, and the remainder of the year's apprenticeship is on-the-job training.

The minister called this a unique system in Canada, and said he would be watching this type of an apprenticeship with interest.

Farmers Import Hay Crop

COURTENAY — Farmers are already importing hay to feed stock, and as winter draws near the lack of hay in the Comox Valley is becoming serious.

Large trucks loaded with hay are making regular trips to the valley. They come from Ellensburg, Washington and average three trucks a week.

Last weekend six trucks loaded with hay were noted parked in a row on Cliffe Avenue at the city entrance from the Island Highway.

It was also learned that railway box cars arrive each week with hay from Creston. Three carloads each week are being received here.

An owner of a feed store said the import of the hay was made necessary following a severe winter last year, and that growing season this year.

Bus Service

Vote Okayed, Date Not Set

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Word has finally been received in the Twin Cities from the Public Utilities Commission, giving permission for referendums to be held regarding franchise and subsidy for the faltering Tyee Bus Service.

But there's more to the problem of when to hold the referendum than meets the eye, according to city spokesmen.

Permission was not received from the PUC in time to hold the referendum as originally planned on Oct. 19.

The earliest date at which such a vote could now be arranged is Nov. 9, the day after the federal election.

"We wouldn't have much hope of getting a good turnout for the vote the day after everyone has trudged out to vote in the federal campaign," said one official.

"We are holding civic elections on Dec. 11 and we could hold the referendum then too."

"Although we might perhaps get a great vote at that time, it might prove disastrous since most home-owners also have their own cars and many are not overly concerned about whether we have a bus service or not."

"However, if we hold a separate referendum, those who are really actively affected by the possibility of loss of the buses will come out and make their needs known."

"Certainly, we will be criticized if we hold a separate referendum for spending the extra money, although the actual cost of such separate vote is very small, possibly about $150. It is very difficult to decide what is the fairest manner to present this to the public."

"All we have ever wanted is a straight answer. Yes we do want bus service, or No we don't want bus service, but the whole thing has been plagued with problems ever since it first came up."

Under provisions to the Municipal Act, only property owners have a vote on the question.

A No vote could leave the entire valley without a public transportation system, since operators of Tyee Bus Service say they cannot continue to operate without a subsidy.

Those most affected by loss of the city buses, low-income families in rented homes and older people who live in flats and rooms, as well as school children within the city where school-bus service is not in effect, are those who have no vote when the matter comes up.

Indian families living on the reserve are also served by the River Road route.

A definite date for the referendum will be decided at Monday's council meetings.

Conservative Candidate

Island-Interior Rail Link Proposed

PORT McNEILL—A B.C. Interior to Vancouver Island railway link has been proposed by Conservative candidate Bill Macadam, Comox-Alberni.

Mr. Macadam, reviving an old proposal for a railroad from the interior to the coast with a link to the Island, said here Wednesday this would be a project he would urge on the government if elected MP for Comox-Alberni.

He said several surveys, the first going back to 1867, have shown the best route from the interior of the province to the coast is down Bute Inlet.

From there, three spans connecting two smaller islands could be constructed establishing a link with the Island.

Former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton made the same proposal in Vancouver last week, as one of a series of projects for B.C. development.

Mr. Macadam said the creation of such a railroad link would lead to tremendous development throughout northern Vancouver Island.

He said it would probably be most economic if the rail link was built by the CPR, with federal financial support.

Mr. Macadam pointed out whoever builds the railway, possibly even the B.C. government, it would require federal support.

He pointed out CPR did the original surveys, which are now in the archives in Victoria. The Conservative candidate said when the surveys were first made, the Bute Inlet route was considered the logical path of the railway, with Victoria as the terminal.

He said "only the rapid growth of Vancouver changed plans to send the railway down the more difficult Fraser Canyon route."

Mr. Macadam pointed out the CPR's E & N link now runs up the Island from Victoria to Courtenay, and a private railway runs up through the Nimpkish Valley.

He said the only "missing link" is a 40-mile stretch from Courtenay to the southern end of the Nimpkish Valley.

Mr. Macadam told the Colonist, shortly before speaking to a political rally, that the railway would meet other railway traffic at Kamloops.

He said it would be a freight run, carrying wheat from the Prairies and potash from Saskatchewan.

He said this railway would enable deep sea ships to pick up cargoes for the Orient at Port Alberni, where port facilities could be greatly expanded.

Mr. Macadam said other inlets on the west coast of the Island would make excellent deep-sea ports to relieve the congestion in Vancouver and New Westminster.

He claimed recently cargo for the Orient has been shipped from the east coast because of the western port situation.

He predicted a major export which will necessitate expanded Island ports is potash.

"This will soon overtake wheat as our major export to the Orient, China and many other Asian countries are very short of potash."

He said boxcars are now coming to the Island at Nanaimo to pick up lumber. "They are coming here empty and going back full; they could be carrying full cargoes here."

The young Conservative said he could foresee the construction of many new harbors, and the enlargement of already existing facilities which would bring increased economic benefits and greater population to all cities and villages in Comox-Alberni riding.

Mr. Hamilton said the government should resurrect the surveys and get a cost estimate on bridges across the islands from the mainland to the Island.

He said the longest bridge on the route would be less than one-half mile.

Mr. Macadam claimed construction of the railway and new port facilities would ease the congestion in Vancouver and enable Canada to fulfill her trade obligations.

"We are continually expanding our trade with the Pacific region," he said. "I feel this program must have a priority rating in the economic and transportation planning of the next government."

Campbell River chamber of commerce recently launched a campaign for a transportation link between the municipality and the interior of the province.

Vancouver Island chambers supported the move, and at their convention last March unanimously approved a proposal for a feasibility study for such a land link, and asked for an examination of the possibility of the numerous ports of Vancouver Island becoming gateways to the Orient.

Murder Trial

Scythe Beating Alerts Police

NANAIMO — The sight of woman being beaten with a scythe prompted a call to police, Percy Jimmy of Quamichan Indian Reserve near Duncan said Wednesday.

He was testifying at the capital murder trial of Bert George, 22, at assizes here.

Roseanne James was slain near her home on the reserve July 17.

Mrs. James was shot in a police car outside her home, while an RCMP constable searched the premises for George.

Mr. Jimmy said he was sleeping at a neighbor's house, and awoke to hear the victim calling for help.

SCYTHE BEATING — He said he saw George beating her with a scythe, and he called the police.

A 14-year-old boy, William James, said George and Mrs. James had gone to Chemainus the previous evening, where both had been drinking.

MORE DRINKING — The group returned to Solomon George's house where more drinking took place. The boy said he attended Kuper Island Residential School but had been spending the summer with Mrs. James.

He left Solomon George's house at 5 a.m. Later he said he heard Mrs. James and Bert George come in, and George shouted at the victim that he didn't want any trouble from her.

BACK YARD — They went out into the back yard, and next thing the boy could recall was a policeman arriving.

Last witness for the day was nine-year-old Leona James, one of the four children of Mrs. James.

She said she saw the police car draw up and the policeman take her mother to the car.

She said she saw George leave the house and heard him say to her mother "you dirty liar."

MOTHER SCREAMS — Her mother screamed and the girl said George pointed the gun at her mother.

Previously, Leona's brother Leonard, 10, testified he saw George get the rifle from his bedroom and point it at Mrs. James.

The trial continues.

Saturday

School, Dorm Decision

CAMPBELL RIVER—A high school in Port McNeill and a dormitory for students in the growing north Island community are included in the large building referendum which will be put to voters on north Vancouver Island Saturday.

Amount of the total referendum for schools amounts to $1,760,000.

Voting on the proposal will be ratepayers in the newly-formed school district No. 84.

PORT McNEILL — The high school at Port McNeill would cost $630,000, and the dormitory is estimated at $88,000.

The referendum could amount to about 1.5 mills in taxes in the school district, which combines the communities in the former districts 73 and 74.

DETAILS — The referendum includes $183,000 for a junior high school at Port Hardy, $182,000 for a junior high at Rumble Beach on the west coast, and additions and improvements to elementary schools at Port Hardy, Rumble Beach, Alert Bay, Sointula, Fort Rupert, Woos Lake, San Josef, Coal Harbor, Quatsino, Nimpkish Lake, Nookish, Winter Harbor, and Nahatlai River.

NANAIMO — United Appeal is gathering momentum here with 62 per cent of the payroll deduction program completed, netting $11,989.

Elaine Hammond polishes kitchen window in new home

Gold River

New Homes, New Life At Tahsis Townsite

GOLD RIVER—First residents have moved into their new homes in this townsite, and the cleaning, polishing and furniture-shifting is underway.

Housewife supervised moving, and tables into homes constructed to house workers building a giant new Tahsis Company pulp mill near here.

The honor of being first women to fix up their new homes went to Jean Dion and Joyce Conrad. Next on the spot was Elaine Hammond.

"I'm very pleased with it," said Mrs. Hammond, looking over the home she and her husband Eric, Gold River logging division warehouseman, will live in.

The Hammond home is a three-bedroom split-level.

EXCITED — Mr. Conrad, whose husband is the logging division foreman, is excited about owning her own home, a three-bedroom built-basement model.

"It feels wonderful to own our own home again," she said. "I always felt kind of insecure, living in a rented house."

FIREPLACES — Mrs. Dion, whose husband is the logging division accountant, said she is delighted with the amount of room there is in her four-bedroom home.

"One of the first things my husband did was to light a fire in the fireplace," she said.

CONTINUE MOVING — Families will continue to move to the townsite from the traditional company-owned logging-camp homes as rapidly as the houses are completed.

It is expected the former logging camp which provided accommodation for the impatient families will be vacated within two weeks.

OLD HOMES MOVE — Then, the homes at the logging camp will be taken on barges and distributed among other company operations on the west coast.

All homes in the new townsite are being sold to the occupants.

RENTALS TOO — Rental accommodation in the form of apartment blocks and townhouses will be built this winter.

The first 45 homes, in subdivision form, are in a cluster at the north end of the new town.

Work has already started on 1,800 students must be attending Nanaimo Senior High school.

NOT GIVING UP — Present enrollment is 1,200 and Mr. Lerch said it would be 1977 before the senior high reached the required number.

The board is not giving up on this project, and it will prepare a brief to the department.

RUN AGAIN — At the school board meeting Wednesday Dr. W. R. MacMillan and Mr. Lerch announced their intention of seeking re-election in Nanaimo in December.

Trustee Joe Shook, who represents Departure Bay, East Wellington and Northfield, would not say whether he would run.

Maple Bay Area

Land Rezoned Despite Opposition

NORTH COWICHAN—With a clear majority council Wednesday brought to an end the controversial Maple Bay rezoning bid, and now the Wainman-Wood property on Genoa Bay Road is classified as commercial and multiple-dwelling area.

It started seven weeks ago when four Calgary men came forward and revealed their plan to develop a marina and a mobile home for retired people at that property in the Bird's Eye Cove district of the Maple Bay Area.

Close to 100 taxpayers from the Maple Bay area vigorously opposed the proposition and finally with the exception of councillors Mrs. Elaine Dobbey and Gerry Smith, council approved the rezoning from rural residential.

The property consists of about 25 acres, and a purchase price quoted earlier was $75,000.

The issue became even more complicated Wednesday afternoon when a new factor was introduced.

Various council members revealed that the Maple Bay Yacht Club was interested in the Wainman-Wood property.

Whether the Calgary men would be willing to sell their new property was left open to speculation.

The yacht club is now located at Maple Bay proper.

Reeve Donald Morton warned council to concern itself only with the rezoning and not with any anticipated deal between two parties.

A bid by Coun. Smith to postpone the rezoning another four weeks found no support.

Under Strict Control

The four men from Calgary will be presented with a list of conditions which would strictly control the development of their scheme.

The conditions will be drawn up by the North Cowichan solicitor.

Council will invite highway department officials to inspect four different projects along the Trans Canada highway through the municipality.

The projects are: Turning lanes at the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, at Fuller's Lake Park and at Mount Sicker Road and a passing lane immediately north of the Chemainus River Bridge.

The move was sparked by a request to the department from the Chemainus-Crafton Chamber of Commerce which requested a turning lane at Fuller's Lake Park.

A total of six projects in North Cowichan were included in a report from consulting engineer Barry Sarjeant.

The projects are: A $395,000 sewer system at Chemainus, probably to be voted on this December; a sewer scheme for the Sherman Road area probably ready for a referendum in the early part of next year; water supply surveys at Chemainus and at Somers; a water supply system along Maple Bay Road to cost about $131,000, and an improvement of the Gibbins Road approach onto Cowichan Lake Road.

'Take the Shackles Off B.C.' Campbell Urges Free Trade

NANAIMO—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has called for tariff-free trade between all nations of the world, including Communist countries.

He said the European common market should be abolished, and the first step toward abolition should be taken by Canada and the U.S. joining the common market and then promoting free trade around the world.

He spoke to an audience of 25 at a Social Credit rally for federal candidate Lyle Wilkinson.

Mr. Campbell called on the federal government to "take the shackles off B.C.", and allow this country to trade freely with countries like China.

"Either we trade with them, or we fight them," he said. Mr. Campbell claimed B.C. trade missions are doing the jobs federal representatives should be doing.

Mr. Campbell said "no matter what political tag a person is wearing, he should have an equal voice in the Commons with everyone else."

Frank G. Skillings

Businessman Dies In Victoria at 57

Well-known Victoria businessman Frank Gordon Skillings died suddenly at his home Wednesday.

Mr. Skillings, 57, of 3005 Craig Road, was president of Victoria Van and Storage and president of F. G. Skillings and Sons Ltd. of Nanaimo.

Born in Victoria, he was an ardent sportsman in his youth, taking part in most sports played in Victoria.

Mr. Skillings was a member of the Royal Colwood Golf Club. He is survived by his wife, Velda Ruth Skillings; four sons, John G. and Roderick R. of Victoria, and Robert B. and Douglas S. of Nanaimo; and two brothers, Victoria Social Credit MLA Waldo Skillings and Stewart of Victoria.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Haywards.

Assassin Prince Used Bullets Too

Mad Monk Plied with Poison

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian Prince Felix Youssouff told an American jury Wednesday how he plied the "Mad Monk" Rasputin with poison food and bullets in a basement room of the Youssouff Palace while a gramophone upstairs played I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy. The standstill-room-only crowd in the state supreme court chamber strained forward as the almost legendary assassin, now 79, told how hard it was to kill the hulking, filthy peasant who had gained the confidence of Czarina and her weak-willed husband, Czar Nicholas II. Youssouff, who was the czar's nephew by marriage, admitted he did not murder Rasputin to save the Imperial Court from his evil influence but because he loathed the monk's sexual debaucheries. He said he asked Rasputin to leave the imperial capital, St. Peters-

Rhodesia Effort

Wilson May Fly to Smith

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Wilson may offer personally to fly to Salisbury in a late-hour effort aimed at heading off Rhodesia's threat to declare its independence from Britain.

Three London newspapers said the offer may be contained in Wilson's latest reply to the white-ruled colony. But sources at No. 10 Downing Street gave no confirmation.

Wilson worked until the early morning hours on his reply to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith after he conferred about the crisis with Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

11th Hour Note Sent to U.K.

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesia's cabinet has sent an ultimatum to Britain to grant the white-ruled central African colony immediate freedom or face a unilateral declaration of independence.

A letter containing the ultimatum was sent to London after a three-hour cabinet meeting.

Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and his 11 cabinet colleagues also made their crucial and long-awaited "decision in principle" on whether to declare independence by themselves if Britain refused.

LITTLE DOUBT

The decision will not be announced until Britain replies to Wednesday's so-called last-ditch message. But there was little doubt here that the cabinet voted in favor of a unilateral declaration.

Wednesday's letter — from Smith to British Prime Minister Wilson — stated:

"We have made our decision on what our next step should be. Its implementation and the consequences which flow from it now depend entirely on your response to this appeal. I now make to you at this 11th hour. Therefore, at this grave hour I repeat to you . . . that the statesmanlike thing for you to do is to grant us our independence and to put us on trust to observe and to abide by the principles of the 1961 constitution." (See Page 5)

KEY WORDING

Smith then added this key paragraph:

"Therefore, we again offer you as an earnest indication of our good faith a solemn treaty to guarantee our undertaking. Should there occur a breach of such solemn undertaking that would be the appropriate time for the British government to take what steps thought fit."

British government sources indicated the treaty proposal could provide a basis for a fresh round of negotiations.

IMPROVEMENT

(Speaking in London Tuesday night, British Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley said that before independence could be granted there must be some improvement on the self-governing colony's 1961 constitution in the direction of Negro advancement.)

After Wednesday's cabinet meeting Smith refused to reveal what decision in principle had been reached.

But a reporter asked: "Does two and two still make four?" Smith said: "Yes."

MEANING

This was immediately taken to mean the cabinet decision was for a unilateral declaration of independence since Smith at a press conference Monday said:

"I believe we have made up our minds and you can put two

Canadians for Viet Nam?

Produce Johnson Note John D Hurls Challenge

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

RENFREW, Ont. — The hustings caught fire last night as Conservative leader John Diefenbaker challenged Prime Minister Pearson to produce at once the "Canadian-troops-for-Viet Nam" letter sent by President Johnson.

At the same time, he charged there was "some reason behind" the confusion, disorganization and deception surrounding the contents of the letter.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew into a rage at a rally in the Legion Hall here, after the Prime Minister and three key ministers had disagreed over the letter.

He was stunned that Defence Minister Paul Hellyer — "Little Boy Blue," he called him — had not even seen the letter from the U.S. president.

Johnson DEMAND

The letter and the government's handling of it are now a major election issue, following claims by Creditistes and others that the government will commit troops to Viet Nam.

Talking to an afternoon crowd of 300, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Prime Minister had said that President Johnson, in his mid-summer letter, wanted Canadian troops for Viet Nam.

"And, naturally, when the Prime Minister says things, you believe them."

ORDINARY LETTER

But External Affairs Minister Martin — "his second in command" — did not know that the Prime Minister had said that. He said the President did not ask for troops.

"When you get the Prime Minister and his senior minister unable to read an ordinary letter, there must be some reason behind it."

"They are both educated men, they both read English. Yet one came to one opinion and one came to the other."

WANTS EXCERPTS

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that he had asked for the letter so he could find out what the Prime Minister and Mr. Martin were talking about.

"After all, who would be sent over there if troops were asked for?"

The Prime Minister, he said, had agreed to this, or at least to produce excerpts to show the situation.

"He wanted," he said, but no excerpts were produced and the blame was given President Johnson.

Cheer

Pearson

HUMBOLT, Sask. — This isolated Prairie town of 3,500 presented Prime Minister Pearson with the biggest, most boisterous rally of his campaign Wednesday.

About 3,500 people, a third of them youngsters under voting age, almost filled the Wigwam Arena. They sang, shouted and waved free miniature Maple Leaf flags, cheering and clapping.

All this in the heart of Diefenbaker country — the one province in which the Tories hold every seat.

FUN ALL EVENING

It was campaigning western style — fun all evening. Well almost all evening. At times the prime minister's speech sounded as flat as the Prairies themselves.

It certainly wasn't all his fault. Premier Ross Thatcher and Senator Hammy McDonald had reviewed the whole Liberal record, and many of his plans for the future before he reached the podium.

The audience erupted with applause at almost everything their two favorite sons had to say. So the prime minister was interrupted at the company's Ingersoll, Ont., plant and a limited amount of the product, resulting from the irregular processing procedure, was packaged," Mr. Mars said.

BEER HERE SATURDAY

By GORDON DODD

Beer, glorious beer — at last!

After almost nine parched weeks, the big bottle and draft drought is at an end and British Columbians will be able to toast the occasion with the hitherto strikebound nectar by Saturday.

Return to work for 450 workers at four mainland breweries and the Lucky Lager plant here begins midnight tonight, after their vote Wednesday night to accept the compromise settlement hammered out in resumed talks between the two sides.

Prior to last week's resumption in negotiations, there had been eight weeks of silence, not to mention frustration for the province's beer drinkers and hotels.

MAJOR CONCESSION

The agreement will give workers a 42-47 cents an hour increase over three years, an extra week's vacation for senior employees.

But job protection clauses are considered the major concession to workers. The agreement covers guaranteed wages, manpower, termination pay, job training and retraining, and accident and sickness benefits.

NORMAL DELIVERIES

Victoria workers voted 523 to accept the agreement at their Union Centre meeting.

Later, Lucky Lager brewmaster W. Spersholt said he could promise normal draft and bottled beer deliveries to outlets Saturday. Several licensed premises in the Greater Victoria area receive their draft supply from the mainland, however.

LIVERLY SELF

Mr. Spersholt added estimates that 8,000 gallons had been lugging in the vats during the strike were conservative, but denied first customers would be getting a brew of special vintage quality.

The beer will just be its liverly self.

The strike began August 23 after lengthy talks between employers and the International Union of United Brewery, Cereal, Flour, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America broke down.

Beer supplies dwindled rapidly.

Within a week or two almost every beer parlor in the Vancouver and Victoria areas and many in other towns and cities had to close because there was no draft beer.

Government liquor stores also ran dry, except for beer supplied by two small interior breweries and limited imported brands.

Several thousand beer parlor waiters were thrown out of work by the strike, which also shut down beer distribution services.

ALGERIAN QUIZ

On Summit Talk

ALGIER (Reuters) — Algeria was requested to sound out all the Afro-Asian nations on whether they wish their summit conference to go on here as planned Nov. 5.

Mr. Campbell spoke in Nanaimo Wednesday night in support of Soerod candidate Lyle Wilkinson who is seeking the seat for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and will speak in Port Alberni on Nov. 4, on behalf of Jean Gagnon who is contesting the Comox-Alberni seat.

Vancouver Island's other two Soerod candidates are Frank Hunter in Victoria and Mrs. Vera Pipes in Esquimalt-Saanich.

THE UP-ISLAND SOERODS have three basic planks in their platform, said Mr. Campbell:

● The Trans-Canada Highway should be extended from Nanaimo to Port Hardy (it now runs from Nanaimo to Victoria).

● Ferry links to Vancouver Island from the Mainland should become part of the Trans-Canada Highway system and the Prince Rupert run should be considered as an international throughway linking the U.S. with Alaska.

● Offshore drilling for petroleum should come under provincial government jurisdiction because "a good deal of it will be adjacent to the Comox-Alberni constituency."

B.C.'s Soerods had only two seats in the last Parliament, those held by incumbents Leboe in the Prince George stronghold and A. B. Patterson representing the Fraser Valley.

Four Children Victims

Carload of Eight Killed in Plunge

RADHUM JUNCTION, B.C. (CP) — Eight Indians, including four tiny children, died Wednesday when their car plunged off a forestry bridge into the Columbia River in southeastern British Columbia.

The accident was spotted by a logging company employee driving along the forestry road.

The car settled in about 10 feet of water. Eight bodies were in the vehicle when it was recovered. All the doors and windows were closed.

Police identified three of the dead as Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stanley of the Columbia reserve near Windermere, B.C., and Josephine Pascal of the Shuswap reserve near Invermere, all within 20 miles of the accident scene in the Rocky Mountains.

The four children killed were Maria, 5, Marlene, 4, Elizabeth, 1, and Leonard, five months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley.

RCMP have not yet released the name of the other adult killed.

Bennett Hits Campaign Trail

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett flies to Prince George today to open a whirlwind, two-week election campaign for Social Credit's 22 B.C. candidates in the Nov. 8 federal election.

He left Victoria Wednesday afternoon with his executive assistant William Budd and driver Art Vickers, planning to stay overnight at the Hotel Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett was to fly this morning to Prince George where he will deliver his opening speech in the civic centre at 8 p.m., in support of incumbent Soerod candidate Bert Leboe.

He is scheduled to fly back to Vancouver Friday, where a major press conference will be held in the Hotel Vancouver at 7 p.m.

HEAVY FIRE

The premier's office gave no indication Wednesday of what can be expected as the Soerod campaign unfolds, but several cabinet ministers have already brought heavy fire on the province's Liberal candidates.

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Wednesday that so far as Vancouver Island is concerned, an effort is being made to get a four-member bloc of Soerod members in the House, who will fight for a fair deal for B.C.

Mr. Campbell spoke in Nanaimo Wednesday night in support of Soerod candidate Lyle Wilkinson who is seeking the seat for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands, and will speak in Port Alberni on Nov. 4, on behalf of Jean Gagnon who is contesting the Comox-Alberni seat.

U.S. Midwest Feels Tremor

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — An earth tremor was felt across Missouri and into Kansas about 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Dr. James Peoples, seismologist at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, said it appeared to be "a pretty decent little earthquake. My guess would be that it was within 200 miles of Lawrence."
